COUNTY TREASURER APPOINTS DEPUTY; TAKES OFFICE SOON

Harold Van Pelt To Be Assistant To Helen
Dodds

Announcement of the appointment of Harold Van Pelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Van Pelt, New Burlington Pike, as deputy county treasurer, is being made by County Treasurer-elect Helen Dodds, who enters upon her first two-year term of office September 6 for which she was elected at the November election ten months ago. Mr. Van Pelt will succeed Ralph George as deputy treasurer. Mr. George, who is a brother-in-law of County Treasurer Frank A. Jackson, will retire from office Saturday, September 3, when Mr. Jackson's second term also expires. Mr. Van Pelt was born at Port William and moved to Greene County in 1905. He is a graduate of Central High School and also attended Ohio State University for two years, later spending two years at the Spencerian School of Accounting, Cleveland, O. He was employed as clerk in the county auditor's office for thirteen months, which enabled him to familiarize himself with Court House routine. Resigning his clerkship, he went to Cleveland for advanced work at the Spencerian School and while there was employed at the Brinks Express Co., acquiring valuable experience in handling payrolls and large sums of money, which will be of assistance in his new position in the treasurer's office.

Although Treasurer Jackson's term expires September 3, Miss Dodds will not officially take office until September 6 because of two intervening holidays, Sunday and Labor Day, when the office will remain closed. Miss Dodds was elected treasurer after eliminating five men opponents in the Republican primary a year ago. She has been a clerk in the office of Treasurer Jackson during both of his terms and before that was employed in the office during the regimes of former treasurers, working under Mrs. C. Turner, Paulkner and before that under the late John McVay. Because of six years work in the office Miss Dodds has acquired a knowledge of operation of the office which well qualified her for the position of treasurer. She has not announced any further appointments to the personnel of her office force.

TURNER RULES ON TRANSFERS OF FUNDS

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—Trust funds received for the benefit, or use, of the state schools for the deaf and blind should be transferred from the state welfare department to the department of education, according to a ruling just given by Attorney General Edward C. Turner to the state department of public welfare.

Turner's opinion was based upon the Gillen act, passed at the last session of the Ohio legislature, providing for transfer of the custody and control of these two state educational institutions from the welfare department to the state department of education.

FIX VALUATION ON B. AND O. PROPERTY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today placed a tentative valuation of $349,547.45 on the property owned by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and a valuation of $579,679.283 on the property used by the road. Both valuations were as of June 30, 1918. At the same time, the commission placed a valuation of $31,467,733 on the property owned by the Baltimore & Ohio-Chicago terminal railway, and a valuation of $25,162,226 on the property used by the road.

BLOCKS MUST GO

DEFIANCE, O., Aug. 30.—Declaring that cement and stone blocks at curbs in front of properties here are relics of the bygone days of buggies with high wheels and that they are a menace to the automobile age, Councilman Joe C. Kruttsch started a movement that resulted in the solons instructing Service Safety Director Frank C. Schneider to have property owners remove them.

VOLSTEAD CANES

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—"Men-about-town" are whispering of the latest in canes, known as the "Volstead stick."

The cane is just the thing for anti-prohibitionists, and carries quite a wallop—when full. It is capable of holding enough liquor to make it necessary to use the small flashlight which is also a part of its equipment, to find the key hole in the dark.

WEATHER DELAYING START OF CANADIAN FLIGHTS TO LONDON

Race May Develop Between Planes Ready To Hop-Off

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 30.—The start of two Canadian attempts to span the Atlantic Ocean in non-stop flights to the capital of the British Empire depends today upon favorable weather reports, with the possibility of a race for the honor causing increased interest. C. G. Schiller, pilot of the "Royal Windsor" and Phil S. Wood, navigator, hoped to be able to take off about 4 o'clock this afternoon for a Windsor-to-Windsor flight. Capt. Terry Tully and Lieut. James Metcalf, crew of the "Sir John Carling" who were forced back to the Ontario city by bad weather over Lake Ontario on their first attempt to span the Atlantic to London, Eng., were ready to start again as soon as conditions permitted.

The London-to-London fliers and their Stinson-Detroler monoplane were the subjects of a heated debate in the city council last night when Alderman V. P. Cronyn urged that the support of the council be withdrawn. It was intimated that the plane might not have sufficient gasoline capacity to carry to London, Eng., and the finance committee of the council recommended that the sponsors of the flight permit a landing at Grace Harbor for refueling if necessary.

The committee also insisted that a copy of the contract made with the aviators be submitted to the council, Alderman D. F. Glass suggesting that it might disclose several surprising features. The recommendations of the committee will come before the council tonight for final action.

WARREN WILL HAVE P. T. A. SESSIONS

WARREN, O., Aug. 30.—H. B. Turner, superintendent of the local schools will welcome delegates to the 22nd annual convention of the Ohio branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which is scheduled to be held in Warren commencing October 6, and continuing through the 8th. Dr. Clinton Wunder, Rochester, N. Y., and J. E. Morgan, editor of the Journal of Education, of Pittsburgh, are featured on the speaker's program. A conference on publicity is to be held by Mrs. E. J. Byrne, state publicity chairman and Mrs. Laura Underhill Kohn of the National Publicity Bureau. Officers are to be elected at a closed session during the convention and amendments to the by-laws are to be considered at the same time.

WILL SEEK OFFICE

OTTAWA, O., Aug. 30.—George A. Stauffer, U. S. marshal at Cleveland, announced at his home here that he would be a candidate for congress from this district next year on an "anti-corn borer warfare" campaign, pledging that he will assist Ohio farmers in a fight against corn borer restrictions.

WOMEN SWIMMERS COMPETE FOR PRIZE IN MARATHON SWIM

Four Leaders Among Women Entered In Toronto Race

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—Women will be prominent among the contenders here tomorrow in the $50,000 swimming marathon, which has attracted the world's greatest long distance swimmers. The leading representatives of the fair sex here today include Clarabelle Barrett, school teacher of New Rochelle, N. Y.; Lottie Moore Schoenel; Miss Ethel Hertle, of New York; and Mrs. Lucy Diamond of Brooklyn, all of whom participated in the Catalina or Lake George marathons or attempted to swim the English channel. And then there is Lorena Davidson, of Long Beach, Cal., a bride of eight months. Lorena is being trained by her husband for the 21-mile crawl and friend hubby just exudes confidence.

Lorena says beefsteak, vegetables, sun and sleep are all she needs to train. Her only sorrow is that her husband won't let her dance until after the race is over. He says it hardens the leg muscles too much. With the Davidsons at Crowe Beach are Martha Steger, Pete Meyer, Leo Fourrier, Arthur Compton and Baird Hicks.

PREPARE PLANE FOR TRANS-OCEAN HOP

COLOGNE, Germany, Aug. 30.—In spite of adverse reports from the weather bureau, mechanics went to work this morning on Otto Koennecke's Caspar bi-plane in the hope that a trans-Atlantic flight from Germany to America could be started today.

FEDERAL HEALTH CHIEF FAVORS FRANKLIN COUNTY QUARANTINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The action of the health authorities in issuing a quarantine order prohibiting the attendance of children under sixteen years of age, from all public places and public meetings in Franklin County, Ohio, because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis was praised today by Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the United States public health service. "I cannot too warmly commend these health authorities for taking this step, in view of the seriousness of the situation," said Cumming.

The cancellation by Dr. Monger, Ohio State health officer, of a baby show in connection with the Ohio State Fair, was also approved by Cumming. "The fact that 1,000 had been entered in this show might have brought about a dangerous situation if it had been permitted to go on," Cumming said.

Cumming pointed out that in the treatment of infantile paralysis cases absolute quiet was essential until the crisis had been passed.

FOUR ARRESTED FOR GAMBLING MAY TEST DOG RACE LEGALITY

Test Cases Expected To Result For "Donation" Plan

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 30.—Four men were held by county authorities here today after "exposing" themselves to arrest at the Euclid Kennels Club greyhound racing course, near Bedford, last night, in order to test the legality of the "donation" system of betting. More than 2,000 attended the races last night and there was much cheering when David Wiseman, of Cleveland, opened one of the ticket windows, knowing that he would follow the sale of a ticket. Joseph Jacobs and L. Reimer, both of Cleveland, bought tickets. Wiseman explaining to each that of their $2 purchases, $1.80 was a "donation" and twenty cents was to buy an interest in the "earnings" of the dog. William Walsh, cashier, paid Reimer and Jacobs $5.40 each at the close of the race and all four submitted to arrest. The race course is situated on the Cuyahoga-Summit County line and about twenty deputies from each county were in attendance. The four arrested last night will go to trial in order to determine whether the "donations" system is a violation of state laws against gambling.

WHAT! ALREADY!

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The first snow storm of the season for New York state was reported here today as an aftermath of the storm of rain and hail which swept eastern New York for the past ten days. From points along the Cherry Valley turnpike came reports that enough snow had fallen last night after the hail, to cover the ground momentarily. The hail damaged fruit, corn and even buildings.

GUARD RIFLE TEAMS COMPETE IN SHOOT

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 30.—With the arrival of the New Jersey and Illinois National Guard rifle teams expected here Wednesday, the total number of guard rifle teams competing in the national rifle matches will reach forty-four. Teams representing Porto Rico and Hawaii arrived here today. The matches will get under way Friday.

Police department pistol teams representing Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., St. Louis and Toledo will compete in the national pistol matches.

CHANNEL SWIMMER FORCED TO GIVE UP

CAPE GRIS-NEZ, France, Aug. 30.—Balked in her attempt to be the first woman to swim the English channel in 1927, Edith Janssens, of Denmark, turned back at 2 o'clock this morning after being in the water four and one-half hours.

Miss Hilda Harding, of England, is also attempting the swim.

AMERICAN CONSULS REQUESTED TO SEEK TRACES OF AVIATOR

Check Theory That Solo Flyer Seen North Of Brazil

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—American consuls at three South American points in the line of Paul Redfern's attempted Georgia-to-Brazil flight were instructed today by the state department to institute search for the missing aviator, long overdue at his destination. The consuls' facilities are limited, but they will take such steps as are possible, those being principally inquiry throughout the sparsely settled areas. The consuls addressed are located at Georgetown, British Guiana, Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, and Para, Brazil, in addition to Caracas, Venezuela.

ENGLAND AMAZED AT STARTLING FLIGHT FROM PARIS HANGAR

Levine Says French Pilot Delayed Trip Too Long For Him

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Apparently abandoning completely his plan to fly back to America with Maurice Drouhin, famous French aviator, Charles A. Levine, New York millionaire, was up bright and early today rushing arrangements for a return flight in company with an English pilot. Levine, who startled Paris and London yesterday by piloting the trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia across the English Channel alone, and landing at the Croydon flying field while ambulances and the fire department waited fearing he would bring the craft to grief, planned to confer later today with a number of British pilots. He is known to favor Captain W. R. Hinchcliff and Captain R. H. McIntosh, and is expected to sound out both on the project before tonight. Levine has obtained the services of Thomas Kincade of the Wright Aeronautical company. Kincade will put the Columbia in condition for its return flights. "We'll be ready in a day or two, perhaps earlier," Levine said this morning. "I will be ready as soon as the machine has been put in trim and a pilot chosen. The flight back won't be quite so exciting as our first crossing, but it will be some thrill just the same." Levine appeared considerably elated today over his successful flight across the channel, which, incidentally, was the first time he had ever handled a plane alone. Levine intimated that he might attempt the return flight alone. "I am beginning to think I am so good that I will not need a pilot for the trip home," he said. Levine explained why he slipped away from Le Bourget under the pretext that he wanted to "test" the Columbia, and blamed Drouhin for failing to attempt the return flight to America before this time. He said he saw no immediate hope of getting away from Paris although he had been ready to go for almost two months. ## OFFICER BEATEN CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—Attempting to arrest a gangster early today, Patrolman Peter Vargo was attacked and beaten by eight companions of the man, who took away his club and pistol. Vargo staggered to a police box, summoned help and five of his attackers were captured later.

"HANDSOME DAN," THE "SHEIK COP" TRIED SOON

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Justice moved swiftly today in the case of Daniel J. Graham, Jr., the young "sheik" policeman accused of the murder of Judson H. Pratt, paymaster of a construction company, who was shot and killed in his automobile and robbed of a $4,700 payroll. Plans were made by the authorities to bring Graham to trial within three weeks. "Handsome Dan," as the policeman was known, still maintains his innocence. He reiterates that the money he spent recklessly shortly before his arrest was bequeathed him by an aunt, who died in Albany. His parents, however, say there was no such aunt. Tomorrow Graham will be taken before Judge Allen in general session where he will plead to the indictment.

The authorities, meanwhile, are reviewing evidence in numerous armored truck hold-ups staged within the last few years, on the theory that Graham may have been mixed up with these. It was recalled that when Miss Hogan asked him the money to buy the car he told her he had "stuck up" a beer truck.

MRS. LEVINE GIVES CHECKS IN PAYMENT TO FRENCH FLYERS

Hopes To Persuade Husband To Return Home On Ship

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Explaining that she acted upon her own responsibility and without instructions, Mrs. Charles A. Levine today paid to Maurice Drouhin, former pilot of the airplane, "Columbia," and his mechanic Francois Mathis, all the money due them under the terms of their contract with Levine for a trans-Atlantic flight that was never made. Mrs. Levine, whose American husband "kidnaped" his own plane at Le Bourget and flew to London after one of the most adventurous flights in history, left for London at noon to rejoin her husband and persuade him to return to the United States at once—by steamship. Mrs. Levine met Drouhin at the office of his lawyer to fulfill the terms of the contract made some time ago by Levine himself. The exact conditions were not revealed but it was understood that Mrs. Levine gave the French pilot a check for $80,000 francs upon the bank of France, which with 20,000 francs already paid by Levine, completes the sum the American plane owner was to pay. If he broke the terms of the contract, in addition to giving Drouhin $80,000, Mrs. Levine gave Mathis a check for 10,000 francs. After the settlement had been made Mrs. Levine immediately made hasty preparations for her departure. "I am going to do all I can to get Charlie to sail for home with me tomorrow," she said. Asked about the settlement with Drouhin and Mathis she replied: "Yes, they were paid every penny due them under the terms of the contract. Mr. Drouhin kissed me upon both cheeks when he received this check. Then he wept upon my shoulder. I couldn't keep back the tears myself, it was so pathetic." Drouhin at first refused to accept the check, but upon the advice of his lawyers finally accepted it. Formal announcement was then made that Levine and Drouhin are now "quits."

Drouhin was so overcome that he wept after the interview. "I have gone through months of anguish and it is no wonder that my feelings come to the surface, now that it is all over," he said. "But there is one consolation. I am certain it is too late in the year for any one to cross the Atlantic from this side."

"I plan to take a vacation for ten days or so and then I may go to the United States with the object of securing an airplane to break the endurance record now held in Germany."

ROME FLIGHT MAY BE STARTED TODAY

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Scores of workmen and engineers worked on the runway here this morning in an effort to recondition it for the hop-off of Old Glory, the monoplane sponsored by William Randolph Hearst. With a west wind predicted for this afternoon, it was believed that the start for Rome would be made late today.

Italy's "Fair Flower"

START PASSENGER SERVICE BY PLANE

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 30.—Airplane passenger service between New York, Cleveland and Chicago will be inaugurated Thursday when the New York-Chicago air mail service is taken over by the National Transport Company, according to an announcement today from Col. Paul Henderson, general manager of the company. Passengers will be obliged to ride in the baggage or mail compartments for a few months, Henderson pointed out, but later the company expects to use planes with regular passenger accommodations, he stated. Rates for passengers for the present will be about ten cents per mile, it was announced.

PREPARE CASES FOR FEDERAL COURTS

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 30.—Preparation of evidence for more than 100 cases to be presented to the federal grand jury and before the federal courts has been started here by the United States district attorney, A. E. Bernstein and his staff. Among the more important cases are the Ohio National Guard pay-check embezzlement and the Superior Industrial Alcohol Company cases. The case of Dr. Homer Thompson, alleged operator of a love cult will be the chief narcotics trial. Eddie Fergus, charged with operating a "blind pig" will be tried while his brother, Billy, alleged beer baron, faces three charges of violating the prohibition law.

PILOTS BREAK LONG FLIGHT TO TURKEY; HONORED IN MUNICH

Good Time Featuring
Progress Of World
Record Seekers

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The round-the-world airplane "Pride of Detroit" enroute from Munich to Constantinople landed at Belgrade at 12:06 o'clock today according to a Central News dispatch from that city. When the airmen in the "Pride of Detroit"—Edward F. Schlee and William Brock—left Munich they stated they would try to make a non-stop to Constantinople, but would land at Belgrade if they encountered bad weather or their fuel ran short.

MUNICH, Aug. 30.—With the same smooth assurance and meticulous punctuality that has marked their record-breaking flight thus far, Edward F. Schlee and William Brock left here at 6:27 o'clock this morning for Constantinople on the third lap of their conquest of the world by air. The "Pride of Detroit," the glided monoplane which carried the fliers to this ancient city from Newfoundland in two hops, made a perfect get away from the Oberwiesenfeld flying field. After circling the airport once, the monoplane sped into the sky toward its goal, a distance of 1,110 miles. Brock and Schlee arrived at the flying field at 6 o'clock. Both declared they had slept extraordinarily well, and declared this due to the beneficial effects of a quantity of Munich's famous beer they had consumed before retiring last night. The fliers tuned up the motor of the "Pride of Detroit," and after a brief inspection, declared it in perfect condition. A lunch was packed, the fliers climbed into the cockpit, and the plane was off hardy twenty-five minutes after Brock and Schlee had appeared at the flying field.

The Detroit airmen were signally honored last night when a dinner was tendered them at their hotel by the Luft Hansa, Germany's premier commercial flying organization. Brock elicited applause from the diners when, upon being asked what baggage he had brought with him on the epochal flight, he pulled out a toothbrush and a comb from his vest pocket. Before the take-off this morning, Luftansa experts examined the engine of the "Pride of Detroit" and declared it "like new."

Despite the earliness of the hour, a good-sized crowd assembled at the airfield to see the start. The fliers' waves of farewell were greeted with a cheer from the assemblage, which included many Americans, and the plane was again off on its hazardous flight.

FIVE PEOPLE HURT WHEN AUTO IS HIT BY TRACTION AT OSBORN

Five members of a St. Paris family, including the mother and father and three children, are patients at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, recovering from painful injuries sustained when their auto was demolished by an I. C. and E. traction car at the Dayton St. crossing in Osborn Sunday night at 6:30 o'clock.

The auto was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Eliza Owen and three children with George Owen at the wheel. The driver apparently failed to notice the interurban car until too late, it was reported. All the occupants were hurt. Mrs. Owen suffered seriously from shock. Oliver, aged 4, who was cut and bruised about the head, was the most seriously injured of the children. The others received hurts of a lesser degree of severity. They were removed to Miami Valley Hospital for treatment in the Morris and Sons ambulance.

POLICE HAVE BOOZE BUT OWNERSHIP IS STILL MYSTERIOUS

With the release of John W. Blair and Mrs. Grace Fanning after questioning by Mayor John W. Prugh Monday, police are no nearer a clue to the ownership of five half-pints of corn whiskey found hidden beneath an overturned box back of a building in the rear of 246 Bellbrook Ave. Saturday afternoon.

The liquor was concealed on property owned by Blair but police asserted a path led to the cache from the rear yard of the home of Mrs. Fanning, next door neighbor, with no indication it had been approached from Blair's house.

The two appeared before Mayor Prugh Monday after being notified by police, but both denied ownership of the liquor, and were discharged after being questioned.

HOME PRINT SHOP SUBJECT OF STORY

The printing shop of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home here is the subject of an article in the current "Linotype News."

The article compliments the institution on the shop in which pupils learn printing and the operation of type-setting machines and in which The Home Weekly is published.

Pictures of Col. Thomas E. Andrews, superintendent, McPherson Phillips, director of printing, and an interior view of the print shop, are shown. Part of the article was contributed by C. W. Rich, Springfield, an ex-pupil.

DOG BITES CHILD

A six-year-old son of Harry Randall, 21 Center St., was taken to the offices of Dr. A. D. DeHaven for examination Sunday afternoon after being bitten in the leg by a dog owned by W. C. Smiley, Greenfield, who was visiting in the neighborhood.

Dr. DeHaven said the wound was not serious. He declared the skin had not been broken and that the dog had been inoculated against rabies.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, investigated.

The Theater

To save themselves the films should drop the stage, in the opinion of F. W. Murnau, European motion picture director. "The stage and stage 'business' has nothing to do with the screen," Murnau says. "We must face that fact now. It will save money in cutting down the number of costly flops."

"A good stage play is almost invariably no good as screen material. I can name but one or two plays besides 'What Price, Glory?' which have been made from a fine stage production into an excellent picture."

There is no bond between stage and screen. The demands of the two widely differ. As a result we must turn away from the stage in seeking material. Experience on the stage must cease to be a recommendation for work in the films.

"The stage's great forte is the spoken line; in pictures posture and carriage. We forget this. We also forget that it is an imitation of stage craft to use subtitles. We must work hard to eliminate the titles. They have no place in pictures."

"The screen is now old enough to travel alone and on its own."

In a picture of Spain now under production all except two of the important players are descendants of Spain.

Hips are to be worn again in Hollywood. This means longer skirts and a diet of potatoes for many fair film workers.

Esther Ralston as a child attended 168 grammar schools. Her folks were vaudeville performers and Esther attended school in every town they played.

Adolphe Menjou gave up a vacation in Europe because his next picture intrigued him so that he had to start work on it immediately.

GROSS NEGLIGENCE IS CITED IN DIVORCE ACTION; OTHER NEWS

Gross neglect of duty is the basis of a suit for divorce filed in Common Pleas Court by Fannie Garrett against Clarence Garrett. They were married in Xenia July 17, 1926. Plaintiff asks to be restored to her maiden name.

William F. McKinney has brought suit for divorce from Kathryn McKinney on grounds of gross neglect of duty. The couple was married January 1, 1922. No children were born of the union. Plaintiff charges his wife associated with persons of bad character.

Divorce is also sought in a suit filed by Cyrus C. Turner against Mildred Turner.

GRANTED DIVORCE
Elma Sanderson, a minor aged 17, by her father and next friend Harry D. Hack, has been granted a divorce from Scott Sanderson in Common Pleas Court on grounds of gross neglect of duty. She was ordered restored to her maiden name of Hack.

PARTITION ORDERED
Partition of property has been authorized in the case of Earl C. Gerlaugh against Oscar H. Gerlaugh, Alta I. Gerlaugh, Martha E. Gerlaugh and The Union Central Life Insurance Co., Cincinnati, O. in Common Pleas Court.

CARD INDEX SYSTEM FOR POLICE COURT FINES INSTALLED

Routine duties at Police Headquarters have been further systematized by establishment of a card system for simplifying the collection of old fines as they are paid in on the time-payment plan by convicted law violators.

The printed cards are called case records and are filled out with the name of the offender who has been released from custody upon promise to pay his fine and costs at intervals.

Space is set aside for the name of his bondsman and the addresses of both, and the cards are marked according to whether it is a city case, state case or Crabbe act violation.

As a payment of the fine is a year ago.

made, it is noted on the card together with the date, until the full amount is paid.

This plan relieves Chief M. E. Graham of the necessity of thumbing over the mayor's record book for a history of the cases and is also proving advantageous to Miss Betty Kennedy, clerk in the city auditor's office, who takes care of that portion of the money that goes to the city and state.

LEARN OF DEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Earl P. Allen, S. West St., left Tuesday morning for Terre Haute, Ind., after receiving word Monday of the death of Mr. Allen's mother, Monday morning.

Mrs. Allen is survived by several children. She visited at the home of her son in this city about a year ago.

SALEM, N. M.—Charles E. Tisdale has an educated cow which he calls "Brilliant Lassie," and not without reason. Using her long, coarse tongue as an elephant uses his trunk, Brilliant Lassie, a pure bred Guernsey, lets herself out of her stall by releasing the latch, carries a pail to the water faucet, turns on the faucet to fill the pail, turns it off, drinks, and returns the pail to its proper resting place. She can turn on electric lights, too, as well as making two and a half pounds of butter fat and averaging forty pounds of milk each day. An offer of $20,000 has been refused for the animal, and her calves sell for $1,000 each.

The QUEEN ANNE HOME HEATER

Built and Guaranteed by ANCHOR STOVE AND RANGE CO., New Albany, Ind. Quality for 60 Years.

The Queen Anne healthfully, comfortably and evenly heats every room upstairs as well as downstairs — by circulating warm, moist air throughout the house as does a furnace. One Queen Anne takes the place of two or four heating stoves, with their dry, stuffy, uneven heat. With only one fire—instead of two, three or four to tend — your home is better heated at less cost.

The Queen Anne operates like a good furnace—yet requires no pipes, no registers, no basement, and costs much less. Thousands of homes — many with as high as five to eight rooms—are being heated with this modern furnace in its beautiful period type cabinet.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINED MONDAY

Thirty three members of the First U. P. Woman's Missionary Society and several visitors enjoyed the August meeting at the beautiful country home of Mrs. W. J. Cherry on the Federal Pike, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. E. C. Moorman and Mrs. Emma Magruder conducted the devotion and read the Sixty-fifth chapter of Isaiah, together with comment and prayer. Roll call was answered with temperance items prepared by Miss Bell Norris.

The regular routine business was transacted, including the acceptance of the invitation of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society, to join in its meeting September 3. The appointment of delegates to the presbytery meeting in Springfield in October, was made and a letter of condolence to Mr. Walter McGarvey, directed sent, on the death of his mother, a member of the society.

Mrs. Cherry sang a solo, the words from the 131st Psalm and the music by Schubert.

Features of the program were a review of the fourth and fifth chapters of the mission study book, "Our Temple Hills," by Mrs. J. E. Waddle and Mrs. M. A. Hagler, and two stories of mission work in Tennessee by the Misses Anna and Marie Robb, formerly of Jamestown.

The program closed with prayer by Mrs. D. S. Ervin, and a social hour followed.

APPROVE HOME IMPROVEMENTS-DEFER WILBERFORCE ACTION

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—The state emergency board today approved the proposed expenditure of approximately $73,000 for remodeling cottages at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, Xenia.

Indefinitely deferring action on the question of approving, or disapproving, the August payroll for officials and employees of the combined state and industrial and normal schools at Wilberforce University, near Xenia, the board today decided to ask Attorney General Edward C. Turner for a ruling as to whether the board has the power to approve, or reject, the payroll of a state educational institution when the payroll does not designate the number of employees.

Members of the board openly took the position that, if the attorney general rules that the emergency board possesses no such power, then all that would be necessary in such cases would be for the state auditor to convince himself that the board of trustees, of such an institution, in making up the payroll was not guilty of some gross irregularity, or clear violation of law.

CHINESE FLAPPER CURTAILED

PEKING, China.—To safeguard the age-old morals of China, Marshal Chang Tso Lin issued a mandate that feminine knees must be banished from view on the street, and any offenders who, whether by accident or otherwise, expose their knees to public gaze, must pay a $10 fine. The first victim was a little ivory-colored miss who, while crossing the street, stumbled and fell.

FRANK TARBOX, EX-SHERIFF AND COURT BAILIFF, SUCCUMBS

Climaxing an illness extending over a period of several years, Frank Tarbox, 74, former sheriff of Greene County, died at his home, 242 N. Galloway St., at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. Death was directly due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Tarbox had been in failing health for several years and his condition grew steadily worse during the past year and one-half, forcing confinement to his home.

He was born on a farm in Cedarville Twp., October 15, 1853, the son of Samuel and Ruth Jackson Tarbox, and was reared on the farm. He married Miss Leola Townsley, of Cedarville, in 1892.

Mr. Tarbox came to Xenia in 1898 to become deputy sheriff under Sheriff Howard Applegate, Yellow Springs, serving two terms. Immediately afterward, he was elected sheriff for two consecutive terms, succeeding Applegate.

At the expiration of the second term, he was appointed a city policeman in January, 1907, shortly before M. E. Graham, present chief of police, became a member of the department. He served five years in this capacity and was then appointed Common Pleas Court bailiff by the late Judge C. H. Kyle. He acted as bailiff until Judge Kyle left the bench.

Mr. Tarbox was a member of the First U. P. Church and was a United Presbyterian all of his life. He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Scott Hudson, Springfield, Mass., who has been with her father for the past six weeks; one sister, Mrs. Lida Foley, Seale, O., and two brothers, David N., Chicago, Ill.; and Harry of Findlay, O.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon with interment in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call anytime after 7 o'clock Wednesday evening.

LEIGHLY ARRESTED WHEN SEARCH SHOWS LIQUOR IN MACHINE

A Packard twinsix sedan, old model, and one gallon of liquor were confiscated by Kenneth C. Barr, county road patrolman, when he arrested Thomas O. Leighly, 35, at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, seven miles from Xenia on the Federal Pike on charges of possessing and transporting liquor.

Leighly was placed in the County Jail, pending a hearing before Probate Judge S. C. Wright Tuesday afternoon.

Leighly, the officer declared, was sitting at the wheel of the parked car along the highway, waiting to deliver the liquor to a customer, when Barr drove up alongside in another auto and searched the car.

The search revealed the gallon concealed in a burlap sack, hidden between seats of the machine.

Leighly has been rooming at 238 W. Third St. He is married but recently separated from his wife. He is a brother of Blaine Leighly who was recently convicted of a charge of liquor law violation in Greene County courts.

APPROPRIATE FUND TO HALT INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—In response to a personal appeal from Dr. J. E. Monger, state health director, the state emergency board today authorized an emergency appropriation of $1,500 from the state treasury for use in combating the epidemic of infantile paralysis now sweeping Ohio.

The appropriation, available at once, will be used, Dr. Monger stated, in employment of three physicians who will aid county health commissioners in isolating, or quarantining, persons who have come in contact with those afflicted with infantile paralysis.

Dr. C. P. Robbins, chief of the division of communicable diseases, state health department, announced that twenty-nine new cases of infantile paralysis were officially reported today from various parts of Ohio as follows: Tuscarawas County, eleven, including three cases at New Philadelphia and one at Dennison; Stark County, eight, including two at Canton; Cincinnati, one; Cardington Morrow Co., two; Wayne County, one; Union County, one; Holmes County, one; Sandusky, one; Mansfield, one; Montgomery County, one; Mt. Sterling, Madison County, one.

Those reported today from Sandusky and Cardington are the first officially received from those districts, it was stated. No deaths from this disease were reported today.

Of the 225 cases reported officially this month, about thirty have been released from quarantine because they have passed the infectious stage and are believed convalescing, Dr. Robbins stated.

"I'll Never Quit The Ring" Says Jack Dempsey

FIGHTING IS THING
HE'S INTERESTED IN

Exclusive Interview Reveals Attitude Of Once
Ring King

By IONE QUINBY
Staff Writer for Central Press and
The Gazette

(This is the famous pugilist's first declaration, for publication, of his future intentions.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—"I'll probably always fight."

That's Jack Dempsey's answer to rumors of his retirement after the Tunney bout.

"It's the thing I like to do," he adds. "I wasn't comfortable making pictures. That isn't my line."

Training at Lincoln Fields Race Track, Crete, Ill., the former heavy-weight champion of the world hasn't a spark of braggadocio in his makeup. He, however, declares himself more confident of triumph in his coming bout with Gene Tunney, Sept. 22, in Chicago, than in any previous fight.

Jack sat in one of the large number of luxurious rooms belonging to the big, rambling house on Colonel Matt Winn's estate, which has been taken over as a training camp, fairly beaming with happy anticipation and self-confidence.

"I have never been so fit in my life," Jack says, with that straight-forward look that is typical of him. Has Boyish Enthusiasm.

His manner is tinged with a boyish enthusiastic quality that is part of the great mauler's magnetism. He seems as graceful and as lithe as some wonderful wild animal, but with a brute strength that is tempered with innate gentility of manner that is a part of Jack.

Jack had just finished four and one-half miles of road work, making gestures at punching as he ran, swinging left hooks, right crosses and uppercuts into the ozone as he went, and making playful thrusts at Jerry Ludvadis, the faithful little Greek who trains the champion.

These thrusts, Jerry explains, mean Jack is in a playful mood, and when Jack is feeling thus, it means his morale is high and that he is happy.

Jack was looking fresh and cool as a cucumber in flannel trousers and a soft-collared white shirt, open at the neck, having doffed his sweat shirts, which are warranted to help take off pounds.

Taking the atmosphere at the camp is surcharged with a belief in Jack's wonderful condition. There is something actually hypnotic about it. Jack weighs 205 now but he is knocking off pounds each day and expects to soon reach 196, his desired weight.

Someone remarked that the present title holder, training in the Adirondacks, is a bigger and faster Tunney than last year.

"Fine! That will make a better fight of it," Jack replies, with a joyous laugh that is catching.

"I want this title back," he continues, pushing back his shock of black hair. "It means more to me to regain it than if someone were to hand me a million bucks. I'm going to make it the greatest fight of my life. I'm in the best shape now, and I'll blossom nicely without extending myself to the point of over-exertion."

In addition to Jack's high morale and unworried thoughts regarding his opponent, he is satisfied with the route of 10 rounds, as designated by the Illinois boxing laws, he said.

Mrs. Dempsey Improved. "It is all right with me," he declares. "It's a fight as far as I'm concerned, and any standard rules they may have here are good enough for me."

Mrs. Estelle Taylor Dempsey has been out to see Jack several times since his arrival at the camp, and his morale is increased because of cessation of worry over her health.

Mrs. Dempsey has picked up and is in better health and higher spirits than when they left California. Jack's gentleness toward his wife has spurred local fight fans to increased admiration of the champion.

While Jack is in wonderful shape at Lincoln Fields, Tex. Rickard's office force reports a veritable landslide of ticket receipts. More than 100,000 seats will be sold for Soldiers' Field, site of the mauling Manassas' meet, with Tunney next month, it is predicted.

DONATES CUP FOR ANNUAL FIELD MEET

A silver loving cup, to be presented to the youth scoring the greatest number of points in the annual Central High School track and field meet next spring, has been donated to the school by W. Kent, Dayton.

The cup will be brought to Xenia next week and will probably be placed on exhibition during the winter. The field meet is an annual feature of the school's spring athletic program and is staged at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Because no representative team has been selected for inter-scholastic events the cup is expected to serve as an additional spur to interest in the annual program. Mr. Kent is connected with The Typewriter Shop, Dayton, and became interested in the school through business associations. He is personally interested in sports and hopes the gift will increase interest in field events at the school.

WILBERFORCE HAS ASSISTANT COACH; OPENS WITH LINCOLN U.

Faced with a hard schedule and with less than a month to train for the opening game, a large squad of candidates is expected to report to Coach Graves, of Wilberforce University, early in September for an intensive period of pre-season training and practice. Candidates have been instructed to report before school opens September 19.

Assisting him in the development of what may be another winning eleven, will be Henry "Hank" Corrothers, of Virginia Union and Springfield "Y" College fame, who is being retained as instructor in physical education and assistant.

The chief problem confronting the two grid mentors will be the development of several backfield and linemen to succeed several good men who were lost to the squad through graduation.

Wilberforce had rather a green team last year and a defeat by Howard University put the school out of the running in so far as national fame was concerned.

Nine games appear on the 1927 schedule, including three at home, five abroad and one on a neutral gridiron.

Wilberforce will open its season against Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo., at Wilberforce, October 1. The next home game is not until October 22 with Kentucky State College. The final home date is with Tennessee State College November 19.

Wilberforce will close its schedule November 24 in the traditional classic with West Virginia at Columbus, O.

Schedule Follows:
October 1—Lincoln U. (Jefferson City, Mo.) at home.
October 8—Bluefield Institute (Bluefield, W. Va.) away.
October 15—Simmons U. (Louisville, Ky.) away.
October 22—Kentucky State College, at home.
October 29—Knoxville College, (Knoxville, Tenn.) away.
November 5—Howard University (Washington D. C.) away.
November 12—Morris Brown U. (Atlanta, Ga.) away.
November 19—Tennessee State College at home.
November 24—West Virginia at Columbus, O.

Sports Done Brown

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Evening Gazette

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Jimmy Slattery, pride of Buffalo, went into the ring against Dave Shade a couple of years ago an overwhelming favorite—as high as 8 to 1. Shade knocked him out.

Bill Brennan, picked as a setup for Jack Dempsey the year after the latter won the heavyweight title, fought the king to a standstill for 11 rounds and then was knocked out—because he forgot for one round the instructions of Leo P. Flynn.

How the "hollow shell" was turned into at least a working model of the old Jack Dempsey for the recent fight with Jack Sharkey is recalled quite readily, of course. Mr. Flynn was the man who turned the trick.

Now these performances may or may not mean a thing as far as the outcome of the coming Tunney-Dempsey party is concerned, but they are well worth considering.

Flynn Wise One. Slattery was given credit for packing the wallop. He had been likened to Corbett in his footwork and boxing ability. Shade, too, was called clever—but liked to wade in.

Flynn's plan of procedure was simple. Shade was instructed carefully and trained diligently for one plan of battle.

Slattery came to him crouched, feinting, playing for an opening to Shade's body.

Shade, erect, proceeded to pummel Slattery into submission with an overhead punch. Every time Slattery let drive for the body Shade drove in that overhead.

Flynn felt that Brennan could "take" Dempsey's punching if he didn't let Jack get set, and that Brennan could outbox Dempsey.

For 11 rounds Brennan obeyed Flynn's instructions. At the end of 10 rounds Brennan had the fight on points. He had made Dempsey look bad.

Between the eleventh and twelfth Brennan's cock sureness got the better of him. "I can knock that guy out," he told Flynn. "You try it and you'll be sorry," said Flynn. "Stay put."

Disregarding Flynn's efforts, Brennan elected to mix it with Jack in the twelfth and went down.

Flynn's success in tuning Dempsey up for his fight with Sharkey can be attributed to three moves—a change in Dempsey's "feet," the shortening of his punches, and the combination of a heavy pad on the ring and "loaded" shoes for Jack's training.

Dempsey, in his efforts to regain some of his old speed afoot, had come to "dance" on his shoes. As a consequence he was not set to put his whole weight behind his punches when he shot them over.

Flynn labored with him for days to bring him down.

Warned Jack. Then, underneath the canvas of the training ring, Flynn slipped a felt pad four inches thick. The shoes he ordered for Dempsey were of heavy soles and top leather.

As a result of these latter moves Dempsey trained under much the same conditions as that of a man stepping around the soft turf of a field with plow shoes. The night Dempsey stepped into the ring against Sharkey he was freed of the heavy footwear and on firm footing. The result was that he felt "lightning fast" on his feet.

One other plan of Flynn's was carried out to the letter, also, that of preventing Dempsey from training himself "out." Flynn's move in winding up Jack's training three days before the fight was considered a blunder. As it turned out, it left Dempsey with his full strength, impatient after the days of idleness and rarin' to go.

BOWLING

Koors "29" five-man bowling team of Dayton defeated a picked Xenia Recreation quintet by 190 pins in an exhibition bowling match Monday night which informally opened the new Recreation Parlors, second floor Flynn Bldg.

The visiting team, comprising five of the leading pinsters in Dayton, amassed 2,713 pins in the three games but rolled below normal form. Xenia totaled 2,523 which indicated lack of practice.

Powell, anchor man for Dayton, collected a three-game total of 568 to lead his team in this respect. Brickell rolled 586 for high score of the match. He had games of 216, 159 and 211. Box score: Koors "29"

Central Grid Season Looming

With the return of Coach Victor Kolb to Xenia Friday, September 2, football practice is expected to be launched almost immediately in anticipation of one of the most successful seasons in years.

Coach Kolb will be entering upon his third year at Central and unlike previous years, this year's eleven will not lack for veteran material.

Fourteen boys who have been accustomed to handling a football, of which the greater number are letter men back from last year, will report for practice. Coach Kolb's chief concern will be the development of a fullback and a half back to replace Fred "Bull Dog" Smith and Max Marshall.

Captain Bob Morton is a certainty for a half back berth and John Gibney, with a year's experience, should hold down the quarter back position satisfactorily. Bob Adair appears slated for a regular berth and Bill Clemans will probably be shifted from center to backfield to round out the offensive quartet.

The team will have a veteran line, including Rakoff and Higgins, guards; and Riley, Scott, Scurry, Mattox, Murray, Rich, Snyder and Cook.

Tom Hampson and Burch Bell, sophomores, are two of the most promising newcomers who are expected to make strong bids for first team berths.

Central will probably arrange a practice game with the O. S. and S. O. Home before the formal opening of the grid schedule with Washington C. H. here September 30.

Eight games have been arranged with one date remaining open between November 12 and November 24. Four games have been booked at home and four away.

Washington C. H., Greenville, Cincinnati Withrow and Wilmington are the teams that will be played here.

Schedule Follows:
September 30—Washington, C. H. here.
October 7—Greenville here.
October 15—Piqua away.
October 21—Urbana away.
October 28—Withrow (Cincinnati) here.
November 3—Wilmington here.
November 12—Troy away.
November 24—Springfield away.

GREENE COUNTY'S BUILDING AND LOAN RESOURCES HIGHER

Building and loan resources in Greene County increased $114,492.58 during the past twelve months, according to figures just issued through the Ohio Building Association League by J. W. Tannehill, state superintendent of building and loan associations.

The three building and loan associations in Greene County have total resources of $5,408,501.91. During the past year these institutions loaned approximately $1,500,000 on first mortgage security on real estate and handled approximately $1,000,000 without the loss of a dollar to any depositor.

Building and loan associations in Ohio during the same period gained $108,847,500, making their total resources $1,040,000,000. "There was not a single building and loan failure among the 553 companies operating in Ohio last year," according to Mr. Tannehill's report.

In his statement, Superintendent Tannehill says that this record for safety was unexcelled by any other financial group in the country.

"The past year was one of the most successful in the history of the Ohio building and loan companies. The gain in resources was the second largest ever made, and these institutions helped to finance 55,000 new homes." The report declares that Ohio building and loan companies are in better financial shape now than at any other time during the past ten years. At present most companies have sufficient funds on hand to meet all demands for home financing money.

Ohio building and loan companies have 2,000,000 borrowers and depositors. Mr. Tannehill pointed out that one out of every two families in the state was a building and loan patron and that 10,000 Ohio business men were serving as directors of these institutions.

DOUBLE HEADER IS FATAL TO CHANCES OF QUOT PITCHERS

Xenia Quoit Club closed a rather disastrous season in the Miami Valley Quoit League Monday night by breaking even with Tippecanoe City and losing to the National Cash Register 14 to 4 in a double header on the N. C. R. courts in Dayton.

Xenia was handicapped for the match. Both Tipp City and Xenia won nine games but the succeeding match with the N. C. R. was a different story.

Altogether, four matches were played on the six N. C. R. courts Monday night. The N. C. R. won the league championship by trouncing Riverdale 12 to 6 and then swamping Xenia.

Riverdale had been on top of the league practically all season and the late spur of the cash register club came as a distinct surprise.

The Xenia-Tipp City match was a regularly scheduled affair but the games with the N. C. R. were postponed from two weeks ago.

Xenia finished in fourth place in the six-team league this year.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

YOUNG AT A HUNDRED

Peter was surprised. "Not a tooth in your head?" exclaimed he. "Then, Tortoise, how in the world do you chew your food?" Jack-in-the-Box shook his head. "Don't chew it!" chuckled he. "But there is nothing in that to worry about! I never have indigestion, so all the food I eat is taken care of in some good way—" out finishing his story? He tapped upon his friend's shell roof. "Wake up! Wake up!" cried he. "You mustn't take your nap before you have told me what happened to the three cousins who went to seek their fortunes!" Tortoise suddenly opened wide his eyes.

"I am sure I don't want to go to sleep, but I shall have to if we talk any longer about teeth and indigestion and things like that. Adventure—that's the only subject to keep an old fellow like me awake!"

"Old—are you old?" Peter was puzzled. "You look like a young chap to me!" "Do I, really?" queried Jack-in-the-Box, much pleased. Then he shook his head. "But, there, you must be flattering me, Boy! I am nearly a hundred years old. Just how much less I am is not quite certain, but one thing I do know—I have outlived most of my woodland friends. Now and again I meet a Tortoise with whom I played as a youngster, but very seldom, very seldom. No, sir, I am an ancient Tortoise—I have almost lived my time, and I shall not be sorry to go to sleep one of these days, never to wake up again. One gets mighty lonely when one is very old. Seems as though now days, old folks are in the way. The young folks are very different now from what they were when I was a boy. But then, it isn't to be expected that a youngster of thirty or forty could look at things the way I do!"

Next—"Can It Be an Umbrella?"

just how I really don't know. And, what is more, I don't care. I live well and to a ripe old age, and if things were not as they should be, I couldn't."

"I'd like to know"—The Boy started to say something. Jack-in-the-Box had the habit of interrupting folks. Now he did it again.

"So should I, but I don't, and that's all there is to it," declared he. "Oh, hum! How sleepy I am growing!"

The Tortoise yawned and closed his eyes. Peter began to be alarmed. What if Jack-in-the-Box should drop off into a sound snooze with-

Sally's Shoulders

READ THIS FIRST:
SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who does not live with her mother. MISS JEROME enjoys ill health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY afternoons. BEAU and MILLIE, her sister and brother, give almost nothing to help her support the home.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, a "dancer" fool, who counts Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Millie is his secretary and he becomes infatuated with her. Millie, however, prefers a bond salesman named DAVIDSON. Davidson is secretly in love with Sally, and Millie is jealous of her.

But when Millie becomes ill with appendicitis it is John Nye who pays for her room at the hospital and sends her flowers. During this time Sally works for John Nye and later when Mr. Peevey retires from business Nye offers Sally a permanent place in his office. But she refuses it and goes into the wayside inn business with her AUNT EMILY JEROME.

Beau marries Mabel Wainot, and he and all the rest of the family move out to the inn, although Aunt Emily protests against their coming. Sally, who is kept busy paying off the money Beau "borrows" from the bank where he works, regrets their coming, too, although she is glad to have her mother where she can look after her.

The wayside inn business does not thrive, and finally Aunt Em hires a jazz band, and Sally puts on a dainty little "ghimmy" dance. The combination makes a hit, and the business "pops up." John Nye comes one day to ask Sally to work for him once more, but Sally refuses again. Millie has told her that John Nye laughed about all the extra jobs she did for him and she believes Millie. She decided to forget him and asks Ted Sloan to stay to supper with her and Millie and Davidson one Saturday night.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER I

THE dinner guests who filled Aunt Em's brightly-lighted rooms that Saturday night had a rare treat. For not only did Sally and Ted dance three times—and they were really good—but Davy Davidson got up and sang some of the songs made famous by Nick Lucas. Like most Welshmen, he had a beautiful, deep voice, and some of the more sentimental diners who had flasks concealed in their hip pockets or under the edge of the tablecloth had tears in their eyes when he finally sat down.

The last song he sang was the song that Sally had heard John Nye whistling on that day nearly a year ago when she had noticed him for the first time—"High-high-high, up on the hill—"

Her deep, shadowy eyes were wistful as she watched him come back to the little table in the private dining room. So wistful that Davy—who couldn't believe that she wasn't in love with him—was sure of it at last.

He reached for her hand under the table, and Sally thrust his violently away from her and got up.

"Come on, Ted," he said, and got a breath of air, she said to her red-headed dancing partner, who was just beginning his dessert of cherry pie.

He sprang up, and together they went out into the cool, dark green depths of Aunt Em's garden.

But Sally knew every inch of the place by heart, and she found some straw cushions in the backyard where she and Aunt Em had sat doing their weekly mending that morning.

"I can't stand that Davidson man," said Sally with a shudder as they sat down. She put her head back against the trunk of the old willow tree behind her, and looked up at the moon.

Instantly she felt Ted's arm going around her shoulders, and he edged closer to her along the grass.

"Hands off!" said Sally, crisply. "I didn't come out here to neck, Ted." But plainly Ted had thought hopefully that that was exactly what she had come for. . . . In his simple and short experience that was what girls usually left a brightly-lighted place and went out into the darkness with a man for. As usual, Sally had been hit by not doing the expected thing.

"Well, what did you come for then?" he asked sulkily, "to look at the moon?"

He meant that for a mild joke. It was unthinkable to him that anyone should want to look at a moon. A good automobile—a pretty girl—a story show—that was the things that young Mr. Sloan considered worth looking at. Certainly a moon was nothing to fire cannons about. Not in his estimation!

"Yes, to look at the moon—partly," answered Sally, coolly. "And partly to get away from Millie's Davidson. I can't bear him—" Her voice trailed off as she thought of the other night when he had kissed her so impatiently, and with such hard eagerness.

Then she remembered something else that had happened that night. Something that she had been turning over and over in her mind all week—the thing that Millie had said to her: "Even Johnny had to laugh about all the funny things you did for him."

For the thousandth time she wondered how he had come to tell Millie about the sandwiches she had brought him when he missed his lunch, the flowers she had put on his desk one morning, the pencils she had sharpened for him. In the silvered darkness she flushed with shame and humiliation, remembering those things. How she wished now that she never had done them for him!

"After all, Teddy's the only man who really treats me decently," she said to herself. "And I treat him like the dirt under my feet—it's pretty mean, isn't it?"

She turned her head and looked at him. He was looking at her and his face was very close to hers. His shoulder touched hers, and through the thin linen of his shirt she could feel that he was trembling.

"Sally," he said slowly, huskily. Even in the dim light she could see the sharp lines of longing that were in his face that was so cheerful and boyish most of the time.

"Sally, don't you know I'm crazy about you?"

"Are you?" asked Sally. "Honest, for sure." She moved away from him the least bit.

"Honest for sure!" She could tell

"Why should I care?" she thought.

fast he meant every syllable of it, and more. "Do you think I'd get up and dance every night like a jumping Jack—make a doggone fool of myself—for anyone but you?—Do you—Not on your bathroom socks!"

He covered her hand, that lay between them on the grass, with one of his. "Not on your precious young life!" he repeated, and put his arm tight around her. "But I'd do anything for you. Anything you asked me to!"

He drew her head down to his shoulder, and leaned over, looking down at her. Sally knew—as every girl knows accurately at such a time—that he was going to kiss her.

"Why should I care," she thought. "He really likes me—and no one else does—why should I care?"

His head bent lower—

Suddenly a light flashed into their faces, and then swerved away from them. A long touring car had rounded the corner of the house and had come to a standstill in the gravel-sweep beyond the lilac bushes.

Sally and Ted moved apart as a man got out of the car and started toward them, his quick feet crunching in it noisily.

"He's coming over here," murmured Ted, and just then the man spoke to his feet and he told him.

He asked one single word: "Millie." It was John Nye's voice.

Too astonished to move, Sally could not even raise her voice to answer him. It was Ted who replied.

"No—it's Sally and me!" He jumped to his feet and held out his hand. Something in his voice told Sally that he was glad that John Nye had found them here together, their arms about each other. He had been jealous of John Nye ever since that night when he had come upon them in the little private dining room.

"O, I see," Nye answered quietly. "I see. Good night."

And then he swung about and went straight back to the long car that gleamed and shone under the moon. He got in, started it, and was off to a racing start. The pebbles showered about the wheels as they sped away down the drive.

"He didn't even ask where Millie was," said Sally dully, when he had gone. "Wasn't that the funniest thing you ever saw—the way he turned around and went without going into the house?"

Ted dropped down beside her again. "Yes, but let's not waste a perfectly good night and a hundred-candle-power moon talking about John Nye and Millie. . . . Come here, woman, I'm going to show you what a real kiss is like!" He was very cocky and sure of himself.

But the spell of the moon and the summer night was gone for Sally—broken by the sound of a man's voice, saying seven short words into the darkness. She got up and slowly drawed her hands away from Ted's hands that tried to hold her. "No, I'm going in," she said, "and dance once more—just for the fun of it."

"I'll go with you," Ted put in, eagerly.

She shook her head. "Oh, no, you'll never dance in there with me again!" she declared firmly. "Now that I know how you feel about it, do you think I'd let you? Do you think I'd let you humiliate yourself for me? Not—as you would say, Ted—on your bathroom socks!"

She left him and went back to the little dining room where Millie and Davidson were sitting in silence at the table. Davidson was looking angry and ruffled and Millie seemed to be on the verge of tears.

That night after he was gone, Sally heard her sobbing to herself in her room.

"I could cry, myself, to think of John Nye finding me all wrapped up in Ted's arms—I'm sure he saw me," said Sally to her bright reflection in the mirror.

Then she decided that she was glad because she had come upon them there together.

"I showed him that I didn't do all those nice things for him because I was in love with him," she told herself with an energetic nod of her head. "He'll think, now, that I'm wild about Ted."

The thought gave her a certain painful pleasure.

That night Mabel's son, Beauregard, Jr., was born in Bethlehem hospital.

Sally drove her there at 2 in the morning in Aunt Emily's comfortable car. Beau followed in his own ramshackle one. And at 4 he was a proud father.

Two weeks later Mabel brought her baby home, and Sally took upon herself an entirely new job. She became a sort of second mother to the tiny new bundle of pink, blossomy flesh that was Beauregard Jerome, Jr. (TO BE CONTINUED)

WORLD FLYERS PAUSE AT BELGRADE

COUNTY TREASURER APPOINTS DEPUTY; TAKES OFFICE SOON

Dodds

Announcement of the appointment of Harold Van Pelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Van Pelt, New Burlington Pike, as deputy county treasurer, is being made by County Treasurer Helen Dodds, who enters upon her first two-year term of office September 6 for which she was elected at the November election ten months ago. Mr. Van Pelt will succeed Ralph George as deputy treasurer. Mr. George, who is a brother-in-law of County Treasurer Frank A. Jackson, will retire from office Saturday, September 3, when Mr. Jackson's second term also expires.

Mr. Van Pelt was born at Port William and moved to Greene County in 1905. He is a graduate of Central High School and also attended Ohio State University for two years, later spending two years at the Spencerian School of Accounting, Cleveland, O.

He was employed as clerk in the county auditor's office for thirteen months, which enabled him to familiarize himself with Court House routine. Resigning his clerkship, he went to Cleveland for advanced work at the Spencerian School and while there was employed at the Brinks Express Co., acquiring valuable experience in handling payrolls and large sums of money, which will be of assistance in his new position in the treasurer's office.

Although Treasurer Jackson's term expires September 3, Miss Dodds will not officially take office until September 6 because of two intervening holidays, Sunday and Labor Day, when the office will remain closed.

Miss Dodds was elected treasurer after eliminating five men opponents in the Republican primary a year ago. She has been a clerk in the office of Treasurer Jackson during both of his terms and before that was employed in the office during the regimes of former treasurers, working under Mrs. Carris Faulkner and before that under the late John McVay.

Because of six years work in the office Miss Dodds has acquired a knowledge of operation of the office which well qualified her for the position of treasurer. She has not announced any further appointments to the personnel of her office force.

TURNER RULES ON TRANSFERS OF FUNDS

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—Trust funds received for the benefit, or use, of the state schools for the deaf and blind should be transferred from the state welfare department to the department of education, according to a ruling just given by Attorney General Edward C. Turner to the state department of public welfare.

Turner's opinion was based upon the Gillen act, passed at the last session of the Ohio legislature, providing for transfer of the custody and control of these two state educational institutions from the welfare department to the state department of education.

FIX VALUATION ON B. AND O. PROPERTY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today placed a tentative valuation of $349,547.475 on the property owned by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and a valuation of $579,679.283 on the property used by the road. Both valuations were as of June 30, 1918.

At the same time, the commission placed a valuation of $31,467,733 on the property owned by the Baltimore & Ohio-Chicago terminal railroad, and a valuation of $25,162,226 on the property used by the road.

BLOCKS MUST GO

DEFIANCE, O., Aug. 30.—Defiance, that cement and stone blocks at curbs in front of property here are relics of the bygone days of buggies with high tops and that they are a menace to the automobile age, Councilman Joe C. Kruttsch started a movement that resulted in the solons instructing Sheriff Safety Director Frank C. Schneider to have property owners remove them.

VOLSTEAD CANES

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—"Men-about-town" are whispering of the latest in canes, known as the "Volstead stick."

The cane is just the thing for anti-prohibitionists, and carries quite a wallop—when full. It is capable of holding enough liquor to make it necessary to use the small flashlight which is also a part of its equipment, to find the key hole in the dark.

WEATHER DELAYING START OF CANADIAN FLIGHTS TO LONDON

Race May Develop Between Planes Ready To Hop-Off

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 30.—The start of two Canadian attempts to span the Atlantic Ocean in non-stop flights to the capital of the British Empire depends today upon favorable weather reports, with the possibility of a race for the honor causing increased interest.

C. G. Schiller, pilot of the "Royal Windsor" and Phil S. Wood, navigator, hoped to be able to take off about 4 o'clock this afternoon for a Windsor-to-London flight.

Capt. Terry Tully and Lieut. James Metcalf, crew of the "Sir John Carling" who were forced back to the Ontario city by bad weather over Lake Ontario on their first attempt to span the Atlantic to London, Eng., were ready to start again as soon as conditions permitted.

The London-to-London fliers and their Stinson-Detroler monoplane were the subjects of a heated debate in the city council last night when Alderman V. P. Crony urged that the support of the council be withdrawn.

The committee also insisted that a copy of the contract made with the aviators be submitted to the council, Alderman D. F. Glass suggesting that it might disclose several surprising features. The recommendations of the committee will come before the council tonight for final action.

WARREN WILL HAVE P-T. A. SESSIONS

WARREN, O., Aug. 30.—H. B. Turner, superintendent of the local schools will welcome delegates to the 22nd annual convention of the Ohio branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which is scheduled to be held in Warren commencing October 6, and continuing through the 8th.

Dr. Clinton Wunder, Rochester, N. Y., and J. E. Morgan, editor of the Journal of Education, of Pittsburgh, are featured on the speaker's program.

A conference on publicity is to be held by Mrs. E. J. Byrne, state publicity chairman and Mrs. Laura Underhill Kohn of the National Publicity Bureau.

Officers are to be elected at a closed session during the convention and amendments to the by-laws are to be considered at the same time.

WILL SEEK OFFICE

OTTAWA, O., Aug. 30.—George A. Stauffer, U. S. marshal at Cleveland, announced at his home here that he would be a candidate for congress from this district next year on an "anti-corn borer warfare" campaign, pledging that he will assist Ohio farmers in a fight against corn borer restrictions.

WOMEN SWIMMERS COMPETE FOR PRIZE IN MARATHON SWIM

Four Leaders Among Women Entered In Toronto Race

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—Women will be prominent among the contenders here tomorrow in the $50,000 swimming marathon, which has attracted the world's greatest long distance swimmers. The leading representatives of the fair sex here today include Clara Belle Barrett, school teacher of New Rochelle, N. Y.; Lottie Moore Schoemel; Miss Ethel Hertle, of New York; and Mrs. Lucy Diamond of Brooklyn, all of whom participated in the Catalina or Lake George marathons or attempted to swim the English channel.

And then there is Lorena Davidson, of Long Beach, Cal., a bride of eight months. Lorena is being trained by her husband for the 21-mile crawl and friend hubby just exudes confidence.

Lorena says beefsteak, vegetables, sun and sleep are all she needs to train. Her only sorrow is that her husband won't let her dance until after the race is over. He says it hardens the leg muscles too much.

FIVE PEOPLE HURT WHEN AUTO IS HIT BY TRACTION AT OSBORN

Five members of a St. Paris family, including the mother and father and three children, are patients at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, recovering from painful injuries sustained when their auto was demolished by an I. C. and E. traction car at the Dayton St. crossing in Osborn Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock.

The auto was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Elza Owen and three children with George Owen at the wheel. The driver apparently failed to notice the interurban car until too late, it was reported. All the occupants were hurt. Mrs. Owen suffered seriously from shock. Oliver, aged 4, who was cut and bruised about the head, was the most seriously injured of the children. The others received hurts of a lesser degree of severity.

They were removed to Miami Valley Hospital for treatment in the Morris and Sons ambulance. The motorman of the traction bound car slowed up the traction car when the crash appeared imminent but could not bring it to a complete stop.

The auto was wrecked and witnesses of the accident considered it remarkable that injuries to members of the family were not more serious.

POLICE HAVE BOOZE BUT OWNERSHIP IS STILL MYSTERIOUS

With the release of John W. Blair and Mrs. Grace Fanning after questioning by Mayor John W. Prugh Monday, police are no nearer a clue to the ownership of five half-pints of corn whiskey found hidden beneath an overturned box truck at a building in the rear of 216 Bellbrook Ave. Saturday afternoon.

The liquor was concealed on property owned by Blair but police asserted a path led to the cache from the rear yard of the home of Mrs. Fanning, next door neighbor, with no indication it had been approached from Blair's house.

The two appeared before Mayor Prugh Monday after being notified by police, but both denied ownership of the liquor, and were discharged after being questioned.

HOME PRINT SHOP SUBJECT OF STORY

The printing shop of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home here is the subject of an article in the current "Linotype News."

The article compliments the institution on the shop in which pupils learn printing and the operation of type-setting machines and in which The Home Weekly is published.

Pictures of Col. Thomas E. Andrews, superintendent, McPherson Phillips, director of printing and an interior view of the print shop, are shown. Part of the article was contributed by C. W. Rich, Springfield, an ex-pupil.

DOG BITES CHILD

A six-year-old son of Harry Randall, 21 Center St., was taken to the offices of Dr. A. D. DeHaven for examination Sunday afternoon after being bitten in the leg by a dog owned by W. C. Smiley, Greenfield, who was visiting in the neighborhood.

Dr. DeHaven said the wound was not serious. He declared the skin had not been broken and that the dog had been inoculated against rabies.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, investigated.

COUNTY HAS CLUB WINNERS AT FAIR

Greene County had a generous share in the prizes announced for Four-H Club members at the Ohio State Fair, Monday evening.

The Theater

To save themselves the films should drop the stage, in the opinion of F. W. Murnau, European motion picture director. "The stage and stage 'business' has nothing to do with the screen," Murnau says. "We must face that fact now. It will save money in cutting down the number of costly flops."

"A good stage play is almost invariably no good as screen material. I can name but one or two plays besides 'What Price, Glory?' which have been made from a fine stage production into an excellent picture."

GROSS NEGLECT IS CITED IN DIVORCE ACTION; OTHER NEWS

"There is no bond between stage and screen. The demands of the two widely differ. As a result we must turn away from the stage in seeking material. Experience on the stage must cease to be a recommendation for work in the films."

"The stage's great forte is the spoken line, in pictures posture and carriage. We forget this. We also forget that it is an imitation of stage craft to use subtitles. We must work hard to eliminate the titles. They have no place in pictures."

"The screen is now old enough to travel alone and on its own."

In a picture of Spain now under production all except two of the important players are descendants of Spain.

Hips are to be worn again in Hollywood. This means longer skirts and a diet of potatoes for many fair film workers.

Ether Ralston as a child attended 168 grammar schools. Her folks were vaudeville performers and father attended school in every town they played.

CARD INDEX SYSTEM FOR POLICE COURT FINES INSTALLED

Routine duties at Police Headquarters have been further systematized by establishment of a card system for simplifying the collection of old fines as they are paid in on the time-payment plan by convicted law violators.

The printed cards are called case records and are filled out with the name of the offender who has been released from custody upon promise to pay his fine and costs at intervals.

Space is set aside for the name of his bondsman and the addresses of both, and the cards are marked according to whether it is a city case, state case or Crabbe act violation.

As a payment of the fine is a year ago.

made, it is noted on the card together with the date, until the full amount is paid.

This plan relieves Chief M. E. Graham of the necessity of thumbing over the mayor's record book for a history of the cases and is also proving advantageous to Miss Betty Kennedy, clerk in the city auditor's office, who takes care of that portion of the money that goes to the city and state.

HEATS MORE ROOMS! The QUEEN ANNE HOME HEATER

Built and Guaranteed by ANCHOR STOVE AND RANGE CO., New Albany, Ind. Quality for 60 Years.

The Queen Anne healthfully, comfortably and evenly heats every room upstairs as well as downstairs — by circulating warm, moist air throughout the house as does a furnace. One Queen Anne takes the place of two or four heating stoves, with their dry, stuffy, uneven heat. With only one fire—instead of two, three or four to tend — your home is better heated at less cost.

The Queen Anne operates like a good furnace—yet requires no pipes, no registers, no basement, and costs much less. Thousands of homes — many with as high as five to eight rooms—are being heated with this modern furnace in its beautiful period type cabinet.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINED MONDAY

Thirty three members of the First U. P. Woman's Missionary Society and several visitors enjoyed the August meeting at the beautiful country home of Mrs. W. J. Cherry, on the Federal Pike, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. E. C. Moorman and Mrs. Emma Magruder conducted the devotions and read the Sixty-fifth chapter of Isaiah, together with comment and prayer. Roll call was answered with temperance items prepared by Miss Bell Norris.

The regular routine business was transacted, including the acceptance of the invitation of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society, to join in its meeting September 3. The appointment of delegates to the presbytery meeting in Springfield in October, was made and a letter of condolence to Mr. Walter McGervey, directed sent, on the death of his mother, a member of the society.

Mrs. Cherry sang a solo, the words from the 131st Psalm and the music by Schubert.

Features of the program were a review of the fourth and fifth chapters of the mission study book, "Our Temple Hills," by Mrs. J. E. Waddle and Mrs. M. A. Hagler, and two stories of mission work in Tennessee by the Misses Anna and Marie Robb, formerly of Jamestown.

APPROVE HOME IMPROVEMENTS-DEFER WILBERFORCE ACTION

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—The state emergency board today approved the proposed expenditure of approximately $73,000 for remodeling cottages at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, Xenia. Indefinitely deferring action on the question of approving, or disapproving, the August payroll for officials and employees of the combined state and industrial and normal schools at Xenia, the board today decided to ask Attorney General Edward C. Turner for a ruling as to whether the board has the power to approve, or reject, the payroll of a state educational institution when the payroll does not designate the number of employees.

Members of the board openly took the position that, if the attorney general rules that the emergency board possesses no such power, then all that would be necessary in such cases would be for the state auditor to convince himself that the board of trustees, of such an institution, in making up the payroll was not guilty of some gross irregularity, or clear violation of law.

CHINESE FLAPPER CURTAILED
PEKING, China.—To safeguard the age-old morals of China, Marshal Chang Tso Lin issued a mandate that feminine knees must be banished from view on the street, and any offenders who, whether by accident or otherwise, expose their knees to public gaze, must pay a $10 fine. The first victim was a little ivory-colored miss who, while crossing the street, stumbled and fell.

FRANK TARBOX, EX-SHERIFF AND COURT BAILIFF, SUCCUMBS

Climaxing an illness extending over a period of several years, Frank Tarbox, 74, former sheriff of Greene County, died at his home, 242 N. Galloway St., at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. Death was directly due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Tarbox had been in failing health for several years and his condition grew steadily worse during the past year and one-half, forcing confinement to his home.

He was born on a farm in Cedarville Twp. October 15, 1853, the son of Samuel and Ruth Jackson Tarbox, and was reared on the farm. He married Miss Leola Townsley, of Cedarville, in 1892.

Mr. Tarbox came to Xenia in 1898 to become deputy sheriff under Sheriff Howard Applegate, Yellow Springs, serving two terms. Immediately afterward, he was elected sheriff for two consecutive terms, succeeding Applegate.

At the expiration of the second term, he was appointed a city policeman in January, 1907, shortly before M. E. Graham, present chief of police, became a member of the department. He served five years in this capacity and was then appointed Common Pleas Court bailiff by the late Judge C. H. Kyle. He acted as bailiff until Judge Kyle left the bench.

Mr. Tarbox was a member of the First U. P. Church and was a United Presbyterian all of his life. He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Scott Hudson, Springfield, Mass., who has been with her father for the past six weeks; one sister, Mrs. Lida Foley, Scio, O., and two brothers, David N., Chicago, Ill.; and Harry of Findlay, O.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon with interment in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call anytime after 7 o'clock Wednesday evening.

LEIGHLY ARRESTED WHEN SEARCH SHOWS LIQUOR IN MACHINE

A Packard twin six sedan, old model, and one gallon of liquor were confiscated by Kenneth C. Barr, county road patrolman, when he arrested Thomas O. Leighly, 35, at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, seven miles from Xenia on the Federal Pike on charges of possessing and transporting liquor.

Leighly was placed in the County Jail, pending a hearing before Probate Judge S. C. Wright Tuesday afternoon.

Leighly, the officer declared, was sitting at the wheel of the parked car along the highway, waiting to deliver the liquor to a customer, when Barr drove up alongside in another auto and searched the car.

The search revealed the gallon concealed in a burlap sack, hidden between seats of the machine. Leighly has been rooming at 238 W. Third St. He is married but recently separated from his wife.

He is a brother of Blaine Leighly who was recently convicted of a charge of liquor law violation in Greene County courts.

APPROPRIATE FUND TO HALT INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—In response to a formal appeal from Dr. J. E. Monger, state health director, the state emergency board today authorized an emergency appropriation of $1,500 from the state treasury for use in combating the epidemic of infantile paralysis now sweeping Ohio.

The appropriation, available at once, will be used, Dr. Monger stated, in employment of three physicians who will aid county health commissioners in isolating, or quarantining, persons who have come in contact with those afflicted with infantile paralysis.

Dr. C. P. Robbins, chief of the division of communicable diseases, state health department, announced that twenty-nine new cases of infantile paralysis were officially reported today from various parts of Ohio as follows: Tuscarawas County, eleven including three cases at New Philadelphia and one at Dennison; Stark County, eight, including two at Canton; Cincinnati, one; Cardington Morrow Co., two; Wayne County, one; Union County, one; Holmes County, one; Sandusky, one; Mansfield, one; Montgomery County, one; Mt. Sterling, Madison County, one.

Those reported today from Sandusky and Cardington are the first officially received from those districts, it was stated. No deaths from this disease were reported today.

Of the 225 cases reported officially this month, about thirty have been released from quarantine because they have passed the infectious stage and are believed convalescing, Dr. Robbins stated.

BIBLE THOUGHT

TIME IS PRECIOUS—So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. Psalm 90:12.

AN INTELLIGENT NATION

"No other nation has advanced so far as ours in its social and economic adjustments," says David F. Houston, former U. S. Secretary of the Treasury. "In no other country can you find political institutions resting upon as broad economic and social foundations, or a population with a higher sense of justice, more prone to do the right thing or with so many useful habits of thought. Other nations of the world have a long distance to go before they will approximate our nation's sound social and economic foundations and its subsequent stability."

"I am far from maintaining that our government is near perfection. Our legislative and executive bodies are human. They do make mistakes. They will continue to do so. We shall continue to have a fair sprinkling of self-seeking politicians in legislative and administrative bodies—men who are not big enough and do not know enough to commend themselves by constructive proposals and sound action on the merits of a question—we shall continue to be threatened and vexed by stupid courses of action."

"In the last analysis everything will depend on the character of our citizenship. It will depend upon our keeping that citizenship pure and upon extending its education in institutions of learning and in the larger school of experience."

CARRIES 'EM ALL AT ONCE

The full weight of the titles, honors and other distinctions borne so courageously on the lithe shoulders of the Prince of Wales is revealed by a compilation in the Review of Reviews.

To the College of Heralds the heir to the British throne is only His Royal Highness, Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland.

But beyond that, the prince wears—theoretically, at least—a half dozen chivalric and military decorations of Britain, along with those of Spain, France, Denmark, Italy, Norway, Czarist Russia and Rumania and holds honorary degrees from the universities of Edinburgh, Oxford, Cambridge, Toronto, Melbourne and Calcutta.

Incidentally, his early training included regular service in both navy and army as well as a course at Oxford, so that there is basis beside rank for his military and academic distinctions.

HEROES AND PATRIOTS

In a western city there lives a hero, a fireman who carried a child down a ladder from a burning tenement in the midst of flames and smoke. He was badly injured while performing his brave deed and spent many weeks in the hospital. He received the acclaim of the public. We laud his courage. This is as it should be.

There is another man in the same city who has received little or no attention. No one has ever thought of calling him a hero. He is the quiet, hard-headed business men who builds his tenements so that those who live in them are free from the fear of fire. He has saved dozens of lives by preventing fires.

It is too bad that fire prevention cannot be made spectacular. However, we can at least honor the man who minimizes fire loss by spending thought and money in its prevention.

You can write the following letter from look over program enclosed and Woodmen, Colo., where he is regaining his health in a sanitarium.)

Editor, Gazette, Xenia, Ohio. Dear Sir: Just a few lines to let you know I have been hitting some of the high spots as well as some of the lower ones.

I landed at Colorado Springs, August 2, feeling fine and confident I was going to skip right along. But the high altitude began to tell and my heart went like a hop, skip and jump and I stepped into the Modern Woodmen city office.

I was rushed out to their sanitarium at Woodmen most of the time at forty-five to fifty miles per hour over the twelve miles of fine highway rising from 6,000 to 7,000 feet altitude in the few minutes drive.

I was put into the receiving hospital and told to rest up for a few weeks to let my heart slow down and quit its queer actions.

I was later given all kinds of tests, x-rays, etc., have shown rapid improvement ever since. I came out of hospital August 22 and have a shak of my own with electric light, steam heat, etc., in the colony.

Cheerful moments. I was permitted to go to Sunday School August 14 and August 21 but rode each way. My nerve never fails me so I asked to go to the Pikes Peak rodeo and was one of seven hospital patients out of seventy to get to go.

We lined up thirty-five cars to Looking over the program you can pick out several movie stars. Josephine Wickes, Buck Lucas and his wife, Tad Lucas, Johnnie Judd, Leonard Stroud, Homer Ward and many others.

Sitting Bull, son of Sitting Bull, of "Custer Massacre Fame" had a band of Sioux Indians who did their stuff.

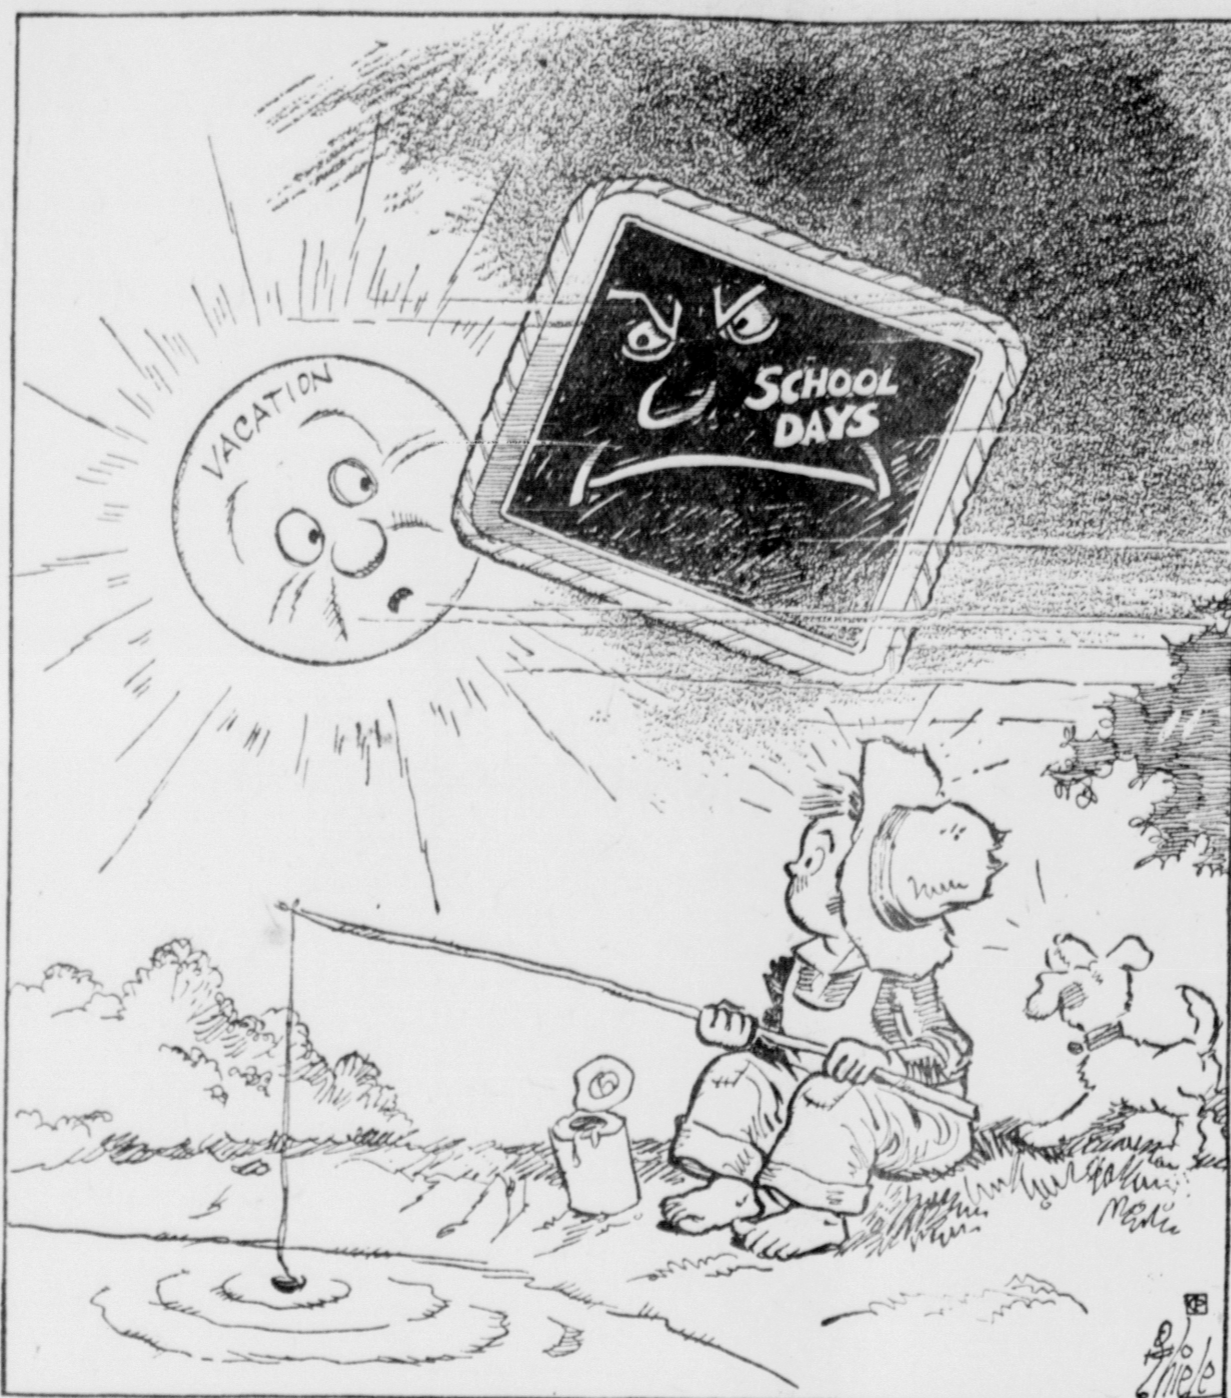

I enjoyed most, the fancy roping, men's relay race, cow girls' relay race, where each rode one-half mile, change horses three times, and raced one and one-half miles. How they could slip off one horse on to another and get away without losing much time was surprising. Steer bulldogging, bareback steer riding and men's bucking contest were great. It was all good and I certainly enjoyed it.

Would you send me August 8, Monday issue of Gazette as I am short that one, please. I see the Post Office team is still winners of chair championship honors.

I have also looked Pikes Peak, Manitou and Mt. Cedar over and expect to take the Graple Creek mining district drive soon. Plenty of places to see and plenty of time also. Am enjoying every minute here while recuperating. Will send a menu from sanitarium so you can see we are eating steer riding and men's bucking contest were great. It was all good and I certainly enjoyed it.

Respectfully, O. C. CUSTER.

MENU HINT

This is the season for corn, and while many of us maintain that no way of cooking can make it taste better than on the cob, there are many ways that allow one to eat it more genteely, perhaps. For a quickly prepared meal the water in which it is to be boiled may be put on while the corn is stripped of its husks. It is seasoned with salt and a bit of sugar, but strictly speaking these should not be added until the corn has been cooking for ten minutes or is done. Some like to boil corn in milk, and it is delicious cooked that way. Recipes for deviled corn and corn puddings are included in today's recipes.

Deviled Corn—Bacon Stuffed Tomato Salad
Buttered Cabbage
Whole Wheat Rolls
Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

Deviled Corn—Two tablespoons butter or savory fat, two tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk, one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon mustard, paprika, two cups corn pulp (fresh or canned), one egg, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, crumbs. Make a sauce of the fat, flour and seasonings, add corn, egg slightly beaten, and Worcestershire sauce. Pour into a baking dish, cover with crumbs mixed with a little butter and bake until crumbs are brown.

Corn Pudding—Three cups grated corn, two eggs, one teaspoon salt, pepper, one tablespoon melted fat, one pint milk. Beat the eggs slightly, add the other ingredients, and bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) until firm. Chopped green pepper may be added if desired.

Fried Corn—Raw corn or left-over corn may be used. Cut from ear and fry in fat. Two or three sliced onions may be added if desired. Season with salt and pepper.

Canapés are appetizers in individual form usually served at the beginning of a formal dinner. They may be served hot or cold according to taste and if served away from the table should be such that they may be taken in the fingers to be eaten. Served at the table with a sauce they are eaten with a fork.

SUGGESTIONS

Removing the Cake. When taking cakes to parties and picnics, place in a box and under cake place several long tapes for the purpose of taking the cake out and not disturb icing.

Summer Cottage "Cellar" A satisfactory cellar for a summer cottage may be made by digging a hole large enough to set a twenty-four-inch sewer pipe into. Stones or brick may be set at the bottom, and if this "cellar" is kept covered buttermilk will keep nicely.

Will Not Warp Wooden washbubs, buckets and wine barrels should not be left empty for any length of time or they will dry out, warp and finally fall apart. Cover the bottoms with about two inches of water and this will prevent shrinkage and drying out.

CANDLESTICK SALAD (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Place a whole slice of canned pineapple on a lettuce leaf. Cut a straight banana in halves crosswise. Place half in upright position in center of the pineapple slice. Make a cut in tip of banana and insert a marshmallow cherry or candied cherry. Drop heavy cream dressing along one side of the banana and on pineapple.

THOUGHTS ABOUT RICH FOLKS

I devote a little time each day to feeling sorry for the rich. No rich man seems to get a square deal. We are all jealous of him and refuse to give him his due. If he earned his fortune with his own hands, by the sweat of his brow, we say, contemptuously, that he's newly rich. If, on the other hand, he got his money by inheritance or marriage, sneeringly we say: "He hasn't sense enough to have earned anything himself."

The poor rich haven't much chance, one way or the other. Not long ago I chanced to get into conversation with a man who had been sleeping on a park bench in New York—because he had no other place to sleep. The next day, as it happened, I was at the Long Island home of a multi-millionaire who also keeps a town house on Fifth Ave., a yacht, a shooting lodge in North Carolina, a winter house in Florida and a rather elaborate bungalow in the Adirondacks. At his Long Island place, he has a $40,000 garage and a high-art greenhouse in charge of a horticulture expert who gets a salary of several thousand dollars a year.

On my way back to town I thought about the man on the park bench and about the man with the estate on Long Island. Neither one of these gentlemen, I reflected, has entirely solved the problem of a sensible way of living. One's scheme is a bit too simplified; the other's is much too complicated.

A friend and I stopped to eat at a famous resort hotel where everybody "dresses" for dinner. "I wonder," suggested my companion, "why people are willing to make themselves uncomfortable on hot summer evenings, when presumably in quest of rest and recreation? If they were all toilers who never had a chance to dress up except once a year and who therefore come to this sort of place on vacation for their one chance at grandeur, I could understand it. But these appear to be people who do it all through the year."

That was just the point. The great bulk of the crowd we saw was without enough imagination to do anything except just what they had been doing. Having felt obliged to follow custom and be uncomfortable nearly every night all winter, it never occurred to them to keep right on, even at a pleasure resort.

How to Achieve Beauty

FIVE AGES OF BEAUTY

I talked to you recently about taking stock of the effects of summer on your beauty and about making your resolutions for the new season. I mentioned the different factors you should consider when you choose your beauty regime, and now I want to discuss one of the most important of these factors. So I am going to tell you about the five ages of beauty.

Do you ever stop to think that your skin has five ages in very much the same way you do? You could almost say that it has its birthdays. It is a living organism that is constantly changing, just as you are changing. Normally, the skin renews itself every seven years, so that a child of fourteen would have none of the same skin he had when he was seven. We shed our skins just as the snakes do, only the process is slower and less conspicuous.

But the new skin is never exactly the same as that which it replaces. Too many women think that "cream is a cream," if it's good for one skin, it's good for another, but they do not consider carefully enough whether it is just the right cream for them at their particular age and under the conditions of environment, season, etc., which surround them.

"Know Your Skin," is the piece of advice I have given you many times before and that I am going to continue driving in until I am sure you will never be satisfied until you have followed it. I might have called this subject, "Know Your Skin's Age," for I am going to tell you what particular care your skin and your other beauty points need at the different stages. I shall begin so early in beauty's life that I may surprise you—with the baby. Then I shall speak of the adolescent, with the particular complaints of that age, a third to the debutante, another to the young matron, and a fifth to the woman of middle age. I stop with middle age because a woman who cares for herself persistently and scientifically never passes beyond that stage in her beauty life.

JOHN D., JR., ON RELIGION

"Religion is a necessity to the human soul," says Rockefeller, Jr. "Man has a craving for the power, the solace, and the strength of a higher power than his own."

The trouble is that very many folks don't think about religion or their spiritual needs until they get in trouble. Then they cry for help.

BUSINESS AND FRIENDSHIP

When the traveler leaves Jerusalem today to tour Palestine he will probably go in an American-made motor car. Three routes from Bagdad across the Arabian desert are served mostly with cars built in America, which are covering the far places of the earth. If only these goods could convey more than a message of business and efficiency. If only they could convey the message of friendliness to all nations. America seeks no conquest by arms. The spread of that idea is the greatest possible gesture of international goodwill.

FLIGHT TO ROME

Speaking of goodwill, the plan to send an airplane from the United States to Rome, bearing messages of religious toleration and international goodwill, is one of the most significant movements outside of official life that has ever been made in the United States.

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.—Lulu Hunt Peters.

POISON IVY, OAK AND SUMAC (PART 2)

In yesterday's paper I described the poison ivy, oak and sumac plants. I got the data from the bulletin on Poison Ivy and Sumac, issued by the U. S. public health service, which you can get by sending five cents in stamps and a request to the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C.

Nature of the Poison Those who are extremely susceptible to the poisons of these plants claim that they can get it by being anywhere near it, through the air. This is not true, and the probability is that they have touched something that has come in contact with the plants. For instance, some friends, or some horses, dogs, or other animals! It seems to be established that the poisonous property is contained in an oily principle called urushiol, which probably can be extracted from all parts of the plant. As this oil is not volatile, it would not get into the air. However, the popular belief that smoke from the burning plants may cause poison, is true, for it contains finely-divided particles of the poison, some very bad cases of poisoning have originated in this manner.

Susceptibility There is probably no one that is absolutely immune to the action of the poison from these plants. Some who are not ordinarily susceptible to poison ivy and oak are susceptible to poison sumac. Whether those who are apparently immune have thicker skins or perspire less so that the pores are not so open, or whether there is a more general body resistance, is not known.

Symptoms The symptoms arise in a few hours to five days or even longer, depending upon the degree of exposure and the susceptibility. One part of the body can be affected by the irritant transferred by the hands, clothing or through bathing. The first sign is usually a slight itching and burning, which increases as the inflammation develops. If pus germs get in, there is swelling, and often small blisters, develop in patches. After the inflammation, peeling takes place. In the loose tissues, as around the eyes, for instance, swelling is apt to be pronounced, and sometimes both eyes may be entirely closed. I have seen cases like this.

The swelling usually goes down as rapidly as it develops, and under ordinary conditions shouldn't cause undue alarm. Don't eat the poison ivy leaves in the spring with an idea that that will give immunity! Severe cases of poisoning have been recorded from this practice.

As the poisonous principle is an oil, the use of soap and hot water will dissolve it, and this is one of the best methods of preventing its development. Don't use a flesh brush. Use a heavy lather and several pilecloths of gauze and continue washing for four or five minutes, using the different pieces of gauze and discarding each in turn and change the water frequently or else use running water. It is well to repeat the process in four or five hours. The hair should be washed also.

Some authorities recommend applying a thick paste of laundry soap and hot water, and leaving it on over night. For those who are susceptible to the poison, the application of a strong soap solution, letting it dry on before going to places where there are poisonous plants, putting on a fresh solution every hour or so, may prevent the poison from penetrating. Tomorrow I'll tell you what to do if the inflammation develops in spite of these precautions.

BOBBY'S UNCLE FRANK MUST BE LIVING! WITH HIM MORE CAUSE THERE'S SOME RED UNDERWEAR ON THEIR CLOTHES-LINE AGAIN!

MARRIAGE

The other day I attended one of the loveliest weddings I have ever seen. The bride was beautiful, the groom stalwart and handsome, the bridesmaids chic and vivacious, the flowers fragrant, the presents sumptuous.

It really was the epitome of romance—the poetry of love as thrilling as when the stars sang together.

PERFIDIOUS MEN

It's funny how certain kinds of letters, like troubles, never come singly. Just now, after hearing from a number of girls, I'm ready to think that men are perfidious bunch. They just can't be trusted. They win a trusting heart and then trample it under foot.

If I didn't know from actual experience, that most men are as good and true to women as women to men, I'd be tempted to take Hamlet's advice and get me "to a nunnery."

A recent letter from a girl who signed herself "Disappointed Blonde," told of her matrimonial disappointments, and deplored man's faithlessness. Her letter was read by a dark-haired girl who has also suffered and she writes me as follows. Her letter is too long to print in its entirety:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I read 'Disappointed Blonde's' letter with much interest because her story coincides so closely with mine. I am also 21, a brunette and considered attractive. I have had many admirers, two of whom proposed. Five years ago I met a lad three years my senior. I believe it was 'love at first sight' with us both. We went together for some time. I finished high school, he left college and went to another city with me where I obtained a position. He left that city and soon after this he told me he no longer loved me. After that I became very ill.

"He wrote a lovely letter asking to see me. He promised to write, but instead he spent week-ends at the home of an old girl chum of mine, giving her many gifts, among them a ring. Some time later he wrote to me and again asked me for forgiveness. He gave the other girl up and gave me a diamond. We planned to be married soon. My parents objected. He became quite angry, declaring I wouldn't sacrifice anything for him. His letters became less affectionate and finally ceased. He nearly broke my heart this time.

"I have lost faith in men. It doesn't seem as if I could ever love another, and I'm wondering if life is worth while. Life seems to me just one great disillusionment. Dear little blonde, my heart goes out to you and I wish you would see this letter."

"DISAPPOINTED BRUNETTE." You have had a great disappointment, dear, and you were not the only one he treated badly. At first he was only one man who acted so. Of course there are men who do such things, but I know the majority are true blue. I haven't "Disappointed Blonde's" address, so I cannot give it to you or even tell her real name, but hope both of you will have happier experiences soon.

A homesick girl writes: "Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been living in this city for two months. I do not know any one and am lonesome and homesick. A few houses up the street from me lives a girl about my age with whom I would like to get acquainted. Please tell me how to do so."

"LONESOME." Smile at her, Lonesome, the next time you meet. Perhaps she is a little shy about speaking first. The Y. W. C. A. is excellent place to make friends and a church school is another.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—There has been a great to do recently concerning a pair of kangaroos who have been seen throughout Westchester according to the report of a great number of residents. The papers have run daily stories dealing with fresh proof of the animals at large. What seems to me a funny, and at the same time clever, commentary on the thrill of the chase that we romped madly away. Ever since, we have been disporting ourselves in the open on the fringe of Westchester's most exclusive colonies. Two weeks of this, however, was enough. After all, we could not afford to neglect our business for a mere back-on-the-whim. Both of us had lost weight, and our wives were becoming suspicious. In fairness to you, the public, and to our wives, we are compelled to admit that prowling in the woods is no business for law-abiding, respectable press agents. Even in the paramount interests of publicity.

Yours relievedly, Ben F. Holzman and Nat N. Dorfman.

After all, it is not beyond the bounds of credulity that the mysterious kangaroos were really the Messrs. Holzman and Dorfman in disguise, who might be mistaken for kangaroos even without disguise.

"You no doubt, like thousands of others, have been reading in the daily press of the two kangaroos who have been hotfooting it through the real estate developments of Westchester county, to the utter perturbation of the residents. Alas, we can contain ourselves no longer. The secret must be out since there has been no capture and there can be none—this is on good authority—as the kangaroos have given up the ghost and returned to their homes."

The animals, if you must know, are none other than Ben F. Holzman and Nat F. Dorfman, two theatrical press agents. We started the stunt in order to get publicity for 'The Manhattans,' an intimate revue at the Selwyn, 'Seventh Heaven,' a motion picture at the Sam H. Harris, Eddie Cantor of the 'Ziegfeld Follies,' Arch Selwyn, James W. Elliot, William Fox and others of our account.

"The scheme was conceived in our offices. Both of us are fast runners, which explains the failure of the Westchester hunters to capture them. We secured the kangaroo outfits from William Fox's storehouse and with a little practice in leaping proceeded to a densely habited portion of Chappaqua, where we donned our disguises and romped through the woods. A man and woman saw us, whereupon we admitted what we considered accurate versions of the kangaroos' shriek of fright and with that, we bounded away."

"How to get the names of our clients in the papers was still some thing of a puzzle. We intended that when the capture was made, we would act as deaf mutes, but that we would offer to the reporters

The First Baptist Church will be re-opened Sunday with appropriate services. Nearly $1,800 was spent on improvements to the church and parsonage.

Messrs. George Kelly and George Little left for Chicago where they will spend a short time on business. Mr. Earl Raney has been quite ill with tonsillitis for the past week, but is improving. Mr. Herbert Miller is visiting friends at New Carlisle. Clarence Schmidt and Steve Phillips went to London where they will be guests at the annual midsummer dance given there.

"I'll Never Quit The Ring" Says Jack Dempsey

FIGHTING IS THING
HE'S INTERESTED IN

Exclusive Interview Reveals Attitude Of Once
Ring King

By IONE QUINBY
Staff Writer for Central Press and
The Gazette

(This is the famous pugilist's first declaration, for publication, of his future intentions.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—"I'll probably always fight."

That's Jack Dempsey's answer to rumors of his retirement after the Tunney bout.

"It's the thing I like to do," he adds. "I wasn't comfortable making pictures. That isn't my line."

Training at Lincoln Fields Race Track, Crete, Ill., the former heavyweight champion of the world has hasn't a spark of braggadocio in his makeup. He, however, declares himself more confident of triumph in his coming bout with Gene Tunney, Sept. 22, in Chicago, than in any previous fight.

Jack sat in one of the large number of luxurious rooms belonging to the big, rambling house on Colonel Matt Winn's estate, which has been taken over as a training camp, fairly beaming with happy anticipation and self-confidence.

"I have never been so fit in my life," Jack says, with that straightforward look that is typical of him.

Has Boyish Enthusiasm.

His manner is tinged with a boyish enthusiastic quality that is part of the great man's magnetism. He seems as graceful and as lithe as some wonderful wild animal, but with a brute strength that is tempered with innate gentleness of manner that is a part of Jack.

Jack had just finished four and one-half miles of road work, making gestures at punching as he ran, swinging left hooks, right crosses and uppercuts into the ozone as he went, and making playful thrusters at Jerry Luavids, the faithful little Greek who trains the ex-champion.

These thrusters, Jerry explains, mean Jack is in a playful mood,
and when Jack is feeling thus, it means his morale is high and that he is happy.

Jack was looking fresh and cool
as a cucumber in flannel trousers and a soft-collared white shirt, open at the neck, having doffed his sweat shirt, which he warranted to help take off pounds.

Taking Off Weight.

The whole atmosphere at the camp is surcharged with a belief in Jack's wonderful condition.
There is something actually hypo-notic about it. Jack weighs 265 now but he is knocking off pounds each day and expects to soon reach 195, his desired weight.

Someone remarked that the present title holder, training in the Adirondacks, is a bigger and faster Tunney than last year.

"Fine! That will make a better fight of it," Jack replies, with a joyous laugh that is catching.

"I want this title back," he continues, pushing back his shock of black hair. "It means more to me to regain it than if someone were to hand me a million bucks. I'm going to make it the greatest fight of my life. I'm in good shape now, and I'll blossom nicely without exercising myself to the point of over-exertion."

In addition to Jack's high morale and unworried thoughts regarding his opponent, he is satisfied with the route of 10 rounds, as designated by the Illinois boxing laws, he said.

Mrs. Dempsey Improved.

"It is all right with me," he declares. "It's a fight as far as I'm concerned, and any standard rules they may have here are good enough for me."

Mrs. Estelle Taylor Dempsey has been out to see Jack several times since his arrival at the camp, and his morale is increased because of cessation of worry over her health.

Mrs. Dempsey has picked up and is in better health and higher spirits than when they left California.
Jack's gentleness toward his wife has spurred local fight fans to increased admiration of the ex-
champion.

While Jack is in wonderful shape at Lincoln Fields, Tex Rickard's office force reports a veritable landslide of ticket receipts.
More than 160,000 seats will be sold for Soldiers' Field, site of the mauling Manassas' meet with Tunney next month, it is predicted.

DONATES CUP FOR ANNUAL FIELD MEET

A silver loving cup, to be presented to the youth scoring the greatest number of points in the annual Central High School track and field meet next spring, has been donated to the school by W.
Kent, Dayton.

The cup will be brought to Xenia next week and will probably be placed on exhibition during the winter. The field meet is an annual feature of the school's spring athletic program and is staged at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Because no representative team has been selected for inter-scholastic events the cup is expected to serve as an additional source of interest in the annual program. Mr.
Kent is connected with The Typewriter Shop, Dayton, and became interested in the school through business associations. He is personally interested in sports and hopes the gift will increase interest in field events at the school.

WILBERFORCE HAS ASSISTANT COACH; OPENS WITH LINCOLN U.

Faced with a hard schedule and with less than a month to train for the opening game, a large squad of candidates is expected to report to Coach Graves, of Wilberforce University, early in September for an intensive period of pre-season training and practice. Candidates have been instructed to report before school opens September 19.

Assisting him in the development of what may be another winning eleven, will be Henry "Hank" Corrothers, of Virginia Union and Springfield "Y" College fame, who is being retained as instructor in physical education and assistant.

The chief problem confronting the two grid mentors will be the development of several backfield and linemen to succeed several good men who were lost to the squad through graduation.

Wilberforce had rather a green team last year and a defeat by Howard University put the school out of the running in so far as national fame was concerned.

Nine games appear on the 1927 schedule, including three at home, five abroad and one on a neutral gridiron.

Schedule Follows:
October 1—Lincoln U. (Jefferson City, Mo.) at home.

October 8—Bluefield Institute (Bluefield, W. Va.) away.

October 15—Simmons U. (Louisville, Ky.) away.

October 22—Kentucky State College, at home.

October 29—Knoxville College, (Knoxville, Tenn.) away.

November 5—Howard University
(Washington D. C.) away.

November 12—Morris Brown U.
(Atlanta, Ga.) away.

November 19—Tennessee State College at home.

ring and "loaded" shoes for Jack's
training.

Dempsey, in his efforts to regain some of his old speed aloft, had come to "dance" on his shoes. As a consequence he was not set to put his whole weight behind his punches when he shot them over.
Flynn labored with him for days to bring him down.

Then, underneath the canvas of the training ring, Flynn slipped a felt pad four inches thick. The shoes he ordered for Dempsey were of heavy sole and top leather.

As a result of these latter moves Dempsey trained under much the same conditions as that of a man stepping around the soft turf of a field with plow shoes. The night Dempsey stepped into the ring against Sharkey he was freed of the heavy footwear and on firm footing. The result was that he "lightning fast" on his feet.

One other plan of Flynn's was carried out to the letter, also, that of preventing Dempsey from training himself "out." Flynn's move in winding up Jack's training three days before the fight was considered a blunder. As it turned out,
it left Dempsey with his full strength, impatient after the days of idleness and tiring to go.

Now these performances may or may not mean a thing as far as the outcome of the coming Tunney-Dempsey party is concerned, but they are well worth considering.

Flynn Wise One.

Slattery was given credit for padding the wallop. He had been likened to Corbett in his footwork and boxing ability. Shade, too, was called clever—but liked to wade in.

Flynn's plan of procedure was simple. Shade was instructed carefully and trained diligently for one plan of battle.

Slattery came to him crouched, feinting, playing for an opening to Shade's body.

Shade, erect, proceeded to pummel Slattery into submission with an overhead punch. Every time Slattery let drive for the body
Shade drove in that overhead.

Flynn felt that Brennan could "take" Dempsey's punching, if he didn't let Jack get set, and that Brennan could outbox Dempsey.

For 11 rounds Brennan obeyed Flynn's instructions. At the end of 10 rounds Brennan had the fight on points. He had made Dempsey look bad.

Between the eleventh and twelfth Brennan's cock sureness got the better of him. "I can knock that guy out," he told Flynn.
"You try it and you'll be sorry," said Flynn. "Stay put."

Disregarding Flynn's efforts, Brennan elected to mix it with Jack in the twelfth and went down.

Flynn's success in tuning Dempsey up for his fight with Sharkey can be attributed to three moves—a change in Dempsey's "feet," the shortening of his punches, and the combination of a heavy pad on the

training.

Central Grid Season Looming

With the return of Coach Victor
Kolb to Xenia Friday, September 2, football practice is expected to be launched almost immediately in anticipation of one of the most successful seasons in years.

Coach Kolb will be entering upon his third year at Central and unlike previous years, this year's eleven will not lack for veteran material.

Fourteen boys who have been accustomed to handling a football, of which the greater number are letter men back from last year, will report for practice.

Coach Kolb's chief concern will be the development of a fullback and a half back to replace Fred "Bull Dog" Smith and Max Marshall.

Captain Bob Morton is a certainty for a half back berth and John Gibney, with year's experience, should hold down the quarter back position satisfactorily. Bob Adair appears slated for a regular berth and Bill Clemens will probably be shifted from center to backfield to round out the offensive quartet.

The team will have a veteran line, including Rakoff and Higgins, guards; and Riley, Scott, Scurry, Mattox, Murray, Rich, Snay-der and Cook.

Tom Hampson and Burch Bell, sophomores, are two of the more promising newcomers who are expected to make strong bids for first team berths.

Central will probably arrange a practice game with the O. S. and S. O. Home before the formal opening of the grid schedule with Washington C. H. here September 30.

Eight games have been arranged with one date remaining open between November 12 and November 24. Four games have been booked at home and four away.

Schedule Follows:
September 30—Washington, C. H.
here.

October 7—Greenville here.

October 15—Piqua away.

October 21—Urbana away.

October 28—Withrow (Cincinnati) here.

November 3—Williaming here.

November 12—Troy away.

November 24—Springfield away.

Xenia Quilt Club closed a rather disastrous season in the Miami Valley Quilt League Monday night by breaking even with Tippecanoe City and losing to the National Cash Register 14 to 4 in a double header on the N. C. R. courts in Dayton.

Xenia was handicapped for the match. Both Tipp City and Xenia won nine games but the succeeding match with the N. C. R. was a different story.

Altogether, four matches were played on the six N. C. R. courts Monday night. The N. C. R. won the league championship by trouncing Riverdale 12 to 6 and then swamping Xenia.

Riverdale had been on top of the league practically all season and the late spur of the cash register club came as a distinct surprise.

The Xenia-Tipp City match was a regularly scheduled affair but the games with the N. C. R. were postponed from two weeks ago.

Xenia finished in fourth place in the sixteen league this year.

Amazing relief. Agonizing pains vanish and your heart fills with gratitude for this product of German and American science. The name is Su-thol (soothe-the-all) tablets.
A proper diet and Su-thol will soon rid the body of poisonous acids that cause pain and distress.

A few days' use of Su-thol will bring results amazingly beneficial.
The cost is trivial and help quick and sure.

Greene County's BUILDING AND LOAN
RESOURCES HIGHER

Building and loan resources in Greene County increased $114,492.
$8 during the past twelve months, according to figures just issued through the Ohio Building Association League by J. W. Tannehill, state superintendent of building and loan associations.

The three building and loan associations in Greene County have total resources of $5,408,501.91.
During the past year these institutions loaned approximately $1,500, 000 on first mortgage security on real estate and handled approximately $10,000,000 without the loss of a dollar to any depositor.

Building and loan associations in Ohio during the same period gained $106,847,000, making their total resources $1,041,000,000. "There was not a single building and loan failure among the 853 companies operating in Ohio last year," according to Mr. Tannehill's report.

In his statement, Superintendent Tannehill says that this record for safety was unexcelled by any other financial group in the country.

"The past year was one of the most successful in the history of Ohio building and loan companies.
The gain in resources was the second largest ever made, and these institutions helped to finance 55, 000 new homes." The report declares that Ohio building and loan companies are in better financial shape now than at any other time during the past ten years. At present most companies have sufficient funds on hand to meet all demands for home financing money.

Ohio building and loan companies have 2,000,000 borrowers and depositors. Mr. Tannehill pointed out that one out of every two families in the state was a building and loan patron and that 10,000 Ohio business men were serving as directors of these institutions.

WOMAN WOULD BE CLUB CHIEF

Mrs. John F. Sippel
By LILIAN CAMPBELL

Who will be the new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs? This question is being asked by the more than 2,000,000 members of this organization, and the fact that the election is almost a year away does not detract in the least from the interest. The federation will hold its biennial convention in San Antonio, Tex., May 29-June 6, 1928, with Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, the present incumbent, presiding.

To date two women have announced their candidacy. Mrs.
John F. Sippel of Baltimore, Maryland, and Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis, Ind. Mrs.
Sippel has the endorsement of the Maryland federation which she served as president for four years, and which she now represents as director in the general federation.

The Delaware federation also has endorsed Mrs. Sippel. She is chairman of the finance committee of the general federation and vice chairman of the house committee.

She was regent of the Baltimore chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for five years, during the world war period. Her family consists of husband, married daughter and little grandson.

usefulness of the general federation are largely dependent upon three vital activities in our federation program," said Mrs. Sippel.
"They are junior membership, club institutes and rural clubs, and they constitute my greatest interest in club work. The future of the woman's club marches forward on the feet of its junior members; club leadership offers the greatest adventure in life; rural women bring us the fresh and untrammeled viewpoint which we need, and we owe them a share of everything which, as city women, our lives have given us."

THOMAS ADAMS, VINCENNES, IND., PUBLISHER. FOUND IT HARD GOING TRYING TO PROVE CORRUPTION.

VIII
By BONITA WITT
Staff Writer for Central Press and
The Evening Gazette.

(This story tells how the caged dragon of Indiana prepared for the future.)

While in his cell at Noblesville,
Ind., waiting to be taken to Michigan City prison to serve a life
sentence for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholzer, young Indianapolis girl, D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, prepared a check-book account of his activities as
"the law in Indiana." He attached notes to checks explaining for what purposes they had been used and why they had been given. Also, he gathered together certain contracts which he alleges
he made with Indiana officials.

He boasted: "I never will serve a life sentence at Michigan City."
He was gathering his evidence against the day when he felt it would serve him best. The caged dragon was sharpening his claws.

This is confirmed by Floyd
Christian, an attorney of Noblesville, who says: "I saw these checks. They were spread in a separate cell. It was during a call
I made upon Stephenson, after his conviction. He requested me to take the checks for him, and hold them ninety days, and if he were not free then, to turn them over
to Prosecutor William Remy, of Marion County (Indianapolis)."

Refused to Take Them
"I refused to take them unless permitted to turn them over immediately without waiting for any expected developments."
Stephenson retained the checks.
And further evidence of his power
came to light.

Shortly after he was taken to prison at Michigan City the state highway commission was under fire. Two of its members were under indictment, charged with disposing of surplus war materials illegally.

Thomas Adams, publisher of a newspaper at Vincennes, Ind., an advocate of good roads, and a believer in the integrity of the commissioners, brought the situation

to the attention of Indiana editors at a meeting of the State
Republican Editorial Association.
Since the railroads had been curtailing service between small
towns, publishers were being foreced to transport their papers in trucks. Good roads, therefore,
were of importance to them. Adams was named as chairman of a committee to investigate the commission.

I went to Vincennes to hear the story of this crusading editor. I found him at his desk, a middle-aged, rather large, gray-haired
man. His battles to bring to light true conditions in Indiana have been hard on him. Obstacles constantly have been put into his path. He has been called "a disgruntled old man, disappointed because he wasn't appointed United States senator, and stirring up a fuss to get even."

Nevertheless, he investigated—
He found that a "road ripper"
bill, designed to change the setup
of the highway commission, was traceable to Stephenson. Before it could be passed, however, Stephenson was in jail.

"From the start, I realized a conspiracy existed to overthrow
the highway commission and discredit the commissioners," Adams says. "The 'road ripper' bill was framed to loot the highway commission. Stephenson now says he

CAGED DRAGON'S CLAWS STILL THREATEN THOSE ON OUTSIDE

THOMAS ADAMS

THOMAS ADAMS, VINCENNES, IND., PUBLISHER. FOUND IT HARD GOING TRYING TO PROVE CORRUPTION.

VIII
By BONITA WITT
Staff Writer for Central Press and
The Evening Gazette.

(This story tells how the caged
dragon of Indiana prepared for
the future.)

While in his cell at Noblesville,
Ind., waiting to be taken to Michigan City prison to serve a life
sentence for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholzer, young Indianapolis girl, D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, prepared a check-
book account of his activities as
"the law in Indiana." He attached notes to checks explaining for what purposes they had been used and why they had been given. Also, he gathered together certain contracts which he alleges
he made with Indiana officials.

He boasted: "I never will serve
a life sentence at Michigan City."
He was gathering his evidence
against the day when he felt it would serve him best. The caged
dragon was sharpening his claws.

This is confirmed by Floyd
Christian, an attorney of Noblesville, who says: "I saw these checks. They were spread in a separate cell. It was during a call
I made upon Stephenson, after his conviction. He requested me to take the checks for him, and hold them ninety days, and if he were
to Prosecutor William Remy, of Marion County (Indianapolis)."

Refused to Take Them
"I refused to take them unless permitted to turn them over immediately without waiting for any
expected developments."
Stephenson retained the checks.
And further evidence of his power
came to light.

Shortly after he was taken to prison at Michigan City the state highway commission was under fire. Two of its members were
under indictment, charged with disposing of surplus war materials illegally.

Thomas Adams, publisher of a newspaper at Vincennes, Ind., an

advocate of good roads, and a believer in the integrity of the commissioners, brought the situation
to the attention of Indiana editors at a meeting of the State
Republican Editorial Association.
Since the railroads had been cur-
tailing service between small
towns, publishers were being fore-
ced to transport their papers in trucks. Good roads, therefore,
were of importance to them. Adams was named as chairman of a committee to investigate the commission.

I went to Vincennes to hear the story of this crusading editor. I found him at his desk, a middle-
aged, rather large, gray-haired
man. His battles to bring to light
true conditions in Indiana have been hard on him. Obstacles constantly have been put into his path. He has been called "a disgruntled old man, disappointed because he wasn't appointed United States senator, and stirring up a fuss to get even."

Nevertheless, he investigated—
He found that a "road ripper"
bill, designed to change the setup
of the highway commission, was traceable to Stephenson. Before
it could be passed, however, Stephenson was in jail.

"From the start, I realized a conspiracy existed to overthrow
the highway commission and discredit the commissioners," Adams
says. "The 'road ripper' bill was framed to loot the highway commission. Stephenson now says he spent $300,000 in an effort to secure the passage of the bill."

"On every yard of pavement laid, on every section of roadway, there could have been a profit," Adams asserts.

"The men indicted for stealing and selling junk, that is surplus war materials allotted to Indiana, by the federal government, were innocent. Prosecutor Remy, himself, admitted that there was no evidence against the men, and finally asked that the indictments be quashed."

"United States Attorney General
Sargent told me in Washington the whole affair was one of the most disgraceful situations ever brought to his attention."

Adams and the small group of men with whom he worked were astounded at the apparent intrigue which revealed itself as they worked. Hampered by persons apparently trying to hide facts, Adams kept hammering away.

Many who made revelations to ## him, Adams declares, were inti- mated to such a degree that they were afraid to make further dis- closures.

Folk feared the man in the penitentiary with the notched checks and "black boxes" hidden away somewhere. He must have smiled at his power, this man locked in prison, deprived of citizenship, as men who had been his friends and those who now were his enemies, swept Adams with a barrage that all but conquered him.

"I wish I never had begun," Adams declared. "But I'm going to fight to a finish." The battle has just begun.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Peter's Adventures

BY MOS FLORENCE
VINCENT

YOUNG AT A HUNDRED

Peter was surprised.
"Not a tooth in your head!" exclaimed he. "Then, Tortoise, how in the world do you chew your food?"
Jack-in-the-Box shook his head. "Don't chew it!" chuckled he. "But there is nothing in that to worry about! I never have indigestion, so all the food I eat is taken care of in some good way—"

Just how I really don't know. And, what is more, I don't care. I live well and to a ripe old age, and if things were not as they should be, I couldn't."

"I'd like to know"—The Boy started to say something. Jack-in-the-Box had the habit of interrupting folks. Now he did it again.
"So should I, but I don't, and that's all there is to it," declared he. "Oh, hum! How sleepy I am growing!"
The Tortoise yawned and closed his eyes. Peter began to be alarmed. What if Jack-in-the-Box should drop off into a sound snooze with out finishing his story? He tapped upon his friend's shell roof.

"Wake up! Wake up!" cried he. "You mustn't take your nap before you have told me what happened to the three cousins who went to seek their fortunes!"
Tortoise suddenly opened wide his eyes.

"I am sure I don't want to go to sleep, but I shall have to if we talk any longer about teeth and indigestion and things like that. Adventure—that's the only subject to keep an old fellow like me awake!"

"Old—are you old?" Peter was puzzled. "You look like a young chap to me!"

"Do I, really?" queried Jack-in-the-Box, much pleased. Then he shook his head. "But, there, you must be flattering me, Boy! I am nearly a hundred years old. Just how much less I am is not quite certain, but one thing I do know—I have outlived most of my woodland friends. Now and again I meet a Tortoise with whom I played as a youngster, but very seldom, very seldom. No, sir, I am an ancient Tortoise—I have almost lived my time, and I shall not be sorry to go to sleep one of these days, never to wake up again. One gets mighty lonely when one is very old. Seems as though now days, old folks are in the way. The young folks are very different now from what they were when I was a boy. But then, it isn't to be expected that a youngster of thirty or forty could look at things the way I do!"

Sally's Shoulders

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who does not live with her mother. Mrs. JEROME enjoys ill health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for Mr. PEEVEY afternoons. BEAU and MILLIE, her sister and brother, give almost nothing to help her support the home. In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, a "dancer" fool, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Millie is his secretary and he becomes infatuated with her. Millie, however, prefers a bond salesman named DAVIDSON. Davidson is secretly in love with Sally, and Millie is jealous of her. But when Millie becomes ill with appendicitis it is John Nye who pays for her room at the hospital and sends her flowers. During this time Sally works for John Nye and later when Mr. Peevey retires from business Nye offers Sally a permanent place in his office. But she refuses it and goes into the outside business with her AUNT EMILY JEROME.

Beau marries Mabel Wilmot, and he and all the rest of the family move out to the inn, although Aunt Emily protests against their coming. Sally, who is kept busy paying off the money Beau "borrows" from the bank where he works, regrets their coming, too, although she is glad to have her mother where she can look after her.

The seaside inn business does not thrive, and finally Aunt Emily hires a new band, and Sally puts on a dainty little "shimmy" dance. The combination makes a hit, and the business "pops up." John Nye comes one day to ask Sally to work for him once more, but Sally refuses again. Millie has told her that John Nye laughed about all the extra jobs she did for him and she believes Millie. She decided to forget him and asks Ted Sloan to stay to supper with her and Millie and Davidson one Saturday night. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER I

THE dinner guests who filled Aunt Emily's brightly-lighted room that Saturday night had a rare treat. For not only did Sally and Ted dance three times—and they were really good—but David Davidson got up and sang some of the songs made famous by Nick Lucas. Like most Welshmen, he had a beautiful, deep voice, and some of the more sentimental diners who had flasks concealed in their hip pockets or under the edge of the tablecloth and tears in their eyes when he finally sat down.

The last song he sang was the song that Sally had heard John Nye whistling on that day nearly a year ago when she had noticed him for the first time—"High—high—high, up on the hill—"

Her deep, shadowy eyes were wistful as she watched him come back to the little table in the private dining room. So wistful that David, who couldn't believe that she wasn't in love with him—was sure of it at last.

He reached for her hand under the table, and Sally thrust his violently away from her and got up.

"Come on, Ted, let's get out and get a breath of air," she said to her red-headed dancing partner, who was just beginning his desert of cherry pie.

He sprang up, and together they went out into the cool, dark green depths of Aunt Emily's garden.

But Sally knew every inch of the place by heart, and she found some straw cushions in the backyard where she and Aunt Emily had sat doing their weekly mending that morning.

"I can't stand that Davidson man," said Sally with a shudder as they sat down. She put her head back against the trunk of the old willow tree behind her, and looked up at the moon.

Instantly she felt Ted's arm going around her shoulders, and he edged closer to her along the grass.

"Hands off!" said Sally, crisply. "I didn't come out here to neck, Ted." But plainly Ted had thought hopefully that that was exactly what she had come for. In his simple and short experience that was what girls usually left a brightly-lighted place and went out into the darkness with a man for. As usual, Sally baffled him by not doing the expected thing.

He meant that for a mild joke. It was unthinkable to him that anyone should want to look at a moon. A good automobile—a pretty girl—a peppy show—those were the things that young Mr. Sloan considered worth looking at. Certainly a moon was nothing to fire cannons about. Not in his estimation!

"Yes, to look at the moon—partly," answered Sally, coolly. "And partly to get away from Millie's Davidson. I can't bear him—" Her voice trailed off as she thought of the other night when he had kissed her so impatiently, and with such hard eagerness.

Then she remembered something else that had happened that night. Something that she had been turning over and over in her mind all week—the thing that Millie had said to her: "Even Johnny had to laugh about all the funny things you did for him."

For the thousandth time she wondered how he had come to tell Millie about the sandwiches she had brought him when he missed his lunch, the flowers she had put on his desk one morning, the pencils she had sharpened for him. In the silvered darkness she flushed with shame and humiliation, remembering those things. How she wished now that she never had done them for him!

"After all, Teddy's the only man who really treats me decently," she said to herself. "And I treat him like the dirt under my feet—it's pretty mean, isn't it?"

She turned her head and looked at him. He was looking at her and his face was very close to hers. His shoulder touched hers, and through the thin linen of his shirt she could feel that he was trembling.

"Sally," he said slowly, huskily. Even in the dim light she could see the sharp lines of longing that were in his face that was so cheerful and boyish most of the time.

"Sally, don't you know I'm crazy about you?"

"Are you?" asked Sally. "Honest, for sure?" She moved away from him the least bit.

"Honest for sure!" She could tell

"Why should I care?" she thought.

that he meant every syllable of it, and more. "Do you think I'd get up and dance every night like a jumping Jack—make a doggone fool of myself—for anyone but you?—Do you—Not on your bathroom socks!"

He covered her hand that lay between them on the grass, with one of his. "Not on your precious young life!" he repeated, and put his arm tight around her. "But I'd do anything for you. Anything you asked me to!"

He drew her head down to his shoulder, and leaned over, looking down at her. Sally knew—as every girl knows accurately at such a time—that he was going to kiss her.

His head bent lower—

Suddenly a light flashed into their faces, and then a swarmed away from them. A long touring car had rounded the corner of the house and had come to a standstill in the gravel-sweep beyond the lilac bushes.

Sally and Ted moved apart as a man got out of the car and started toward them, his quick feet crunching in it noisily.

"He's coming over here," murmured Ted, and just then the man spoke to them.

"He asked me single words: 'Millie'—it was John Nye's voice."

Too astonished to move, Sally could not even raise her voice to answer him. It was Ted who replied.

"No—it's Sally and me!" He jumped to his feet and held out his hand. Something in his voice told Sally that he was glad that John Nye had found them here together, their arms about each other. He had been jealous of John Nye ever since that night when he had come upon them in the little private dining room.

"O, I see," Nye answered quietly. "I see. Good night."

And then he swung about and went straight back to the long car that gleamed and shone under the moon. He got in, started it, and was off to a racing start. This Sally remembered about the wheels as they sped away down the drive.

"He didn't even ask where Millie was," said Sally dully, when he had gone. "Wasn't that the funniest thing you ever saw—the way he turned around and went without going into the house?"

Ted dropped down beside her again. "Yes, but let's not waste a perfectly good night and a hundred-candle-power moon talking about John Nye and Millie. . . . Come here, woman, I'm going to show you what a real kiss is like!" He was very cocky and sure of himself.

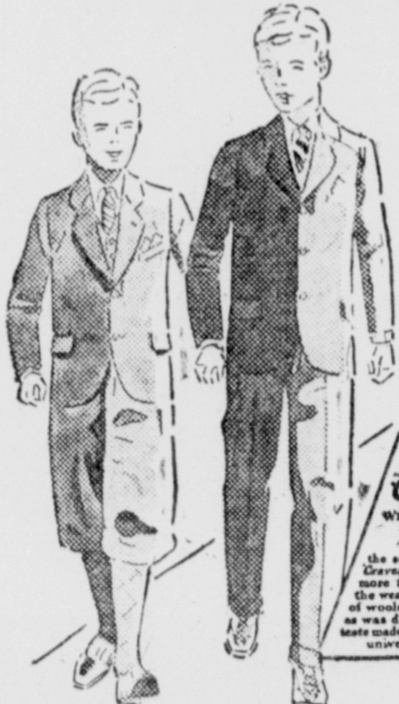

But the spell of the moon and the summer night was gone for Sally—broken by the sound of a man's voice, saying seven short words into the darkness. She got up and slowly

That night Mabel's son, Beauregard, Jr., was born in Bethlehem hospital.

Sally drove her there at 2 in the morning in Aunt Emily's comfortable car. Beau followed in his own ramshackle red one. And at 4 he was a proud father.

Two weeks later Mabel brought her baby home, and Sally took upon herself an entirely new job. She became a sort of second mother to the tiny new bundle of pink, blossomy flesh that was Beauregard Jerome, Jr.
